Holloways Strive To Capture Expanding Freezer, Branded Beef Markets

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

DARLINGTON, Md. — Farm diversification is nothing new to the Holloway Brothers Farm, operated by Henry and Richard Holloway. For years they've raised beef cattle, hogs, and crops.

But a new venture into specially marketed beef, and their own freezer beef direct market, is showing signs of profit potential.

Under the Roseda Farm label, Monkton, Md., beef is being marketed to restaurants in the Baltimore area.

The 400-acre Holloway Brothers partnership finishes Angus and Angus crossbreds for Roseda, which is slowly developing a label.

About 50 head of cattle are being finished "naturally," said Richard Holloway. The cattle are fed no antibiotics and are not injected with growth hormones. They are fed corn silage, hay, or haylage and grain, all grown on the farm.

This is the first year of the Holloway's enterprise to a branded beef. Roseda furnishes the farm with bulls; in return, Roseda receives the Holloway Brothers calves as feeders, noted Richard. Or Holloway Brothers can feed their calves for Roseda, and Roseda then receives the finished cattle.

Roseda sends the meat to a local butcher shop, where it is processed individually for freezer markets and restaurants, noted Richard.

The Holloways also raise their own freezer beef, sent to a local butcher shop for processing.

The Holloways grew up on the seventh-generation farm in the small village of Darlington. The Holloway partnership began on Jan. 1, 1959, noted Henry.

The home farm measures 400 acres. Total tillage, including rented ground, numbers about 660 acres.

New EPA Runoff Rule

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Groups concerned that a new federal rule means substantial costs and unnecessary red tape for Pennsylvania landowners are coordinating a meeting for people to learn more and to express their concerns.

This meeting is set for 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursday, June 15 in the Reading area at the Berks County Ag Center, Leesport.

The meeting is sponsored by a coalition involving agricultural groups, such as the Farm Bureau and Grange, along with landowner, forest and wood product, and other interest groups.

The coalition estimates that landowners would spend around $10,000 for a permit and that the total annual cost to Pennsylvanians could be from $10 million to $100 million. There are more than 500,000 Pennsylvanians alone who own forestland — a total of 11.5 million acres.

The coalition argues that in-

Majority prices were unchanged to lower on whole, and usually unchanged on balance of other items when compared to last week's values. Offerings were reported as in close balance to occasionally available. Buying interest improved but sellers were cautious at prevailing price levels. The undertone was mixed. Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending May 27, 2000 were 4 % less last week, and 2 % less than a year ago. ## Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Wed June 7, 2000
USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

Profit taking and favorable weather seemed to be the major factors in lower grain and soybean bids. Wheat steady to 4 cents lower. Corn 4 to 6 cents lower. Sorghum 11 cents lower. Soybeans 2 to 8 cents lower.

Hot, dry weather over the hard red winter and soft red winter growing areas allowed for active harvest after recent rain delays. Light export sales of wheat this week but no substantial amounts have been purchased.

Forecasts are calling for light rains across the Corn Belt over the next 6 to 10 days. Additional weakness was due to lack of fresh export news for corn and beans.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

JUNE 12-18, 2000

FULL STRAWBERRY MOON, JUNE 16.

NO DIVISION

A house divided against itself cannot stand," Abraham Lincoln said on June 16, 1858. He had just thrown his hat into the ring with the Republicans, who were emerging as the antislavery advocates of the time. Lincoln had been nominated for the U.S. Senate, opposing Stephen Douglas, and the two gave a series of public debates in Illinois to showcase their positions. On the subject of slavery, Lincoln was eloquent and logical. Not only was slavery unjust, he argued, but if allowed to continue with no restrictions, it would eventually undermine the jobs of all free laborers. "In giving freedom to the slave, we assure freedom to the free," Lincoln told Congress in December 1862.

Bad promises are better broken than kept.
–Abe Lincoln

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Spray your shower curtain with vinegar to deter mildew.

SWEET MUSTARD PICKLES

12 cucumbers, sliced
1 cauliflower, washed and cut into florets
3 pounds small onions, sliced
1/2 cup salt (or less)
1-1/3 cups flour
6 cups sugar
1 tablespoon turmeric
4 tablespoons dry mustard
2 quarts (or more) apple cider vinegar

Clean and trim vegetables and sprinkle with salt. Let stand overnight. In the morning, rinse and drain. Combine dry ingredients, blend in the vinegar, and cook until thickened, stirring. Pour this over the vegetables, adding more vinegar, if necessary, to cover. Simmer for 30 minutes, then process in sterilized glass jars.

Makes 4 to 6 quarts.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If sailors see a cat who appears playful on board ship, they say the cat has a gale of wind in her tail.

If St. Vitus's Day (June 15) be rainy weather, it will rain for thirty days together.

Previous to St. John's Day (June 24), we dare not praise the barley.

The Building you want.
The Lease you need.

Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 35 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated deductions: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings. Could reduce tax liability this year.
- Low upfront costs: Beginning costs as little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms start aggressively at five years but may be as long as ten, twelve, or fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules are specially designed to match your cash flow.

First: Talk with a qualified builder to determine your needs and building cost.

Ag Biotechnology Benefits

Biotechnology holds too many promises for feeding an ever-growing world to allow scare tactics and unsubstantiated claims to retard the advances the technology offers.

With the scientific community constantly surveying new products, and rendering biotech crops as safe, Americans should embrace the advances provided by modern technology.

Various federal agencies are responsible for overseeing (biotech) products — the Environmental Protection Agency, the Department of Agriculture, and the Food and Drug Administration.

Farmers and ranchers have great confidence in the judgment of respected scientific authorities who have the experience and expertise required to make informed decisions.

Anti-biotech activists have tried spreading doubt about biotech's safety and benefits globally. Yet they haven't offered a shred of verifiable evidence that biotech food is unsafe to humans or threatens the environment.

We are confident that increased evaluation and examination by experts of the biotechnology process itself and the products that it develops will permit more rapid consumer acceptance of the innovations. As good as our system already is, America's farmers and ranchers welcome the extra emphasis on safety.

We understand the initial consumer concerns regarding biotech crops. But we are also confident that consumers are smart enough to realize many of the alarms sounded regarding biotechnology are simple unsubstantiated scare tactics.

Biotechnology offers the world too many benefits to be chased away by the misguided and misinformed agendas of a few activist groups.

The environment benefits through reduced pesticide applications and less energy requirements. Less runoff means even cleaner water. And soil erosion, already minimal, will be even further reduced. Fewer trips across a field cultivating or spraying means less fuel used.

As an example of what the good biotech crops can do, a new product called "Golden Rice," developed through biotechnology, will be higher in beta-carotene than standard rice. This will help prevent blindness. Golden Rice also will be higher in iron, which reduces the incidence of anemia.

Here's a food that gets a headline that says it's actually good for you. That's quite a change from what consumers have come to expect on food reporting. And Golden Rice will be great for the people in Third World countries, which was the whole idea behind its development.

America's farmers are ready, willing and able to produce enhanced products of biotechnology. Anti-biotech activism does not reflect or, as yet, affect American consumer attitudes. The vast majority of consumers here and in other countries maintain their faith in the integrity and the quality of America's food safety chain.

Now Is The Time

To Sign Up Crop Acreage

It is now time to sign up your crop acreage with your local Farm Service Agency.

Small grains (wheat, barley, oats) should be reported by June 15. Remaining crops (corn, soybean, grain sorghum, hay, and tobacco) should be reported by July 15.

This is a voluntary sign-up. However, as federal government programs are being developed, sign-up could be a condition for receiving payments.

Programs that might require reporting of acreage include loan deficient payments, disaster payments, and facility loan payments.

Do not lose your future eligibility for federal programs by not reporting your acreages. For more information, contact your local Farm Service Agency.

To Watch For Hot Hay

Baling hay that is too green may cause heating. This heating could lead to spontaneous combustion and burn down the hay storage facility, reports Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent.

Hay should not be stored until the moisture level reaches 20 percent or less. At higher moisture levels, there is a greater risk of fire.

In addition, hay baled above that moisture level has a high risk of becoming moldy and dusty.

Haylage, on the other hand, should be put into storage before its moisture content drops below 50 percent. Depending on the storage structure, haylage is best preserved for feed when it is between 50 and 60 percent moisture. Haylage with a moisture content of 45 percent poses a significant risk of fire.

To Check Hay-Mows For Hot Spots

To be safe from fires, inspect haymows at least twice each week during the harvest season, reminds Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent.

Check for hot spots and check hot spots for their exact temperature using a thermometer. If hay temperatures reach 150 degrees, there is a danger of fire and a daily monitoring of hay is recommended. If temperatures reach 160 degrees, monitoring should be at four-hour intervals.

Fire pockets can be expected if the temperature reaches 175 degrees. You should notify your local fire department and place them on standby and be ready to remove hay. If the temperature reaches 185 degrees, have the fire department on hand to put out fires, which may erupt as hay is taken out of storage.

At 210 degrees, hay is certain to ignite.

Even with these safety precautions, fires can start and barns can burn to the ground. Do not wait until it is too late to call for help.

You may also want to check with your insurance company to see what coverage you have.

CLIMBING DOWN TO A HIGHER LEVEL

Background Scripture:
Philippians 2:1-18.
Devotional Reading:
2 Peter 3:8-18.

Faced with writing about our assigned scriptural passage this week, I couldn't help thinking of a story I heard about an American college student who visited the home of Beethoven at Bonn and asked for permission to play on the great composer's piano.

After playing a few bars of the "Moonlight Sonata," she turned to the guard and said, "I suppose all the great pianists have played during their visits here."

"No, miss," replied the guard. "Paderewski was here two years ago but he said he was not worthy to touch it."

I was tempted to turn in this column with a single sentence pleading "I am not worthy to touch it," but I didn't think that would likely sit well with my editor and maybe even you the reader. So I will comment on it with the caveat that I know there is no way I can do justice to this passage.

Because of space limitations I am going to concentrate upon just one of its themes: the humility of the "mind of Christ".

Identical Love

Paul is proud of this church and at the same time is fearful that it will break apart in factions. So he writes: ". . . complete my joy by being of the same mind, having the same love, being in full accord and of one mind" (2:2).

Let me assure you that Paul is not asking that they think alike. That was impossible at Philippi, as at my church and probably yours.

What is essential for followers of Jesus Christ? That they believe identically? That they worship in the same way? That they behave according to the same moral standards? No, there will always be differences of opinion, belief, and declarations.

There is, however, one thing which we can and must have in common: the "mind of Christ" — not the thoughts of Christ, but that which preceded the thoughts: the same desire to know and serve God that was the basis for all that Jesus taught and did.

Actually, "being of the same mind" is too weak a translation of Paul's Greek, but there is no comparable English to convey the same meaning. Phillips and the Living Bible render it as having "the same attitude."

Others focus on the love of Christ: "having the same love" (Alford), "united in mutual love" (Weymouth), "fostering the same disposition of love" (Charles B. Williams) and "live together in love" (J.B. Phillips).

The New English Bible says, "Let your bearing towards one another arise out of your life in Christ Jesus." Note that none of these suggest conformity of thought, only a conformity of love.

Each of the people in the Phillipian church probably thought that they were doing God's work by insisting that other conform to their beliefs. They were certainly proud of doing battle for Christ in these matters. But Paul shows them that this is not what Christ wants nor asks of them. Indeed, he contrasts the humble attitude of Jesus Christ whom they think they are serving with their proud attitudes.

"We are in the right!" they undoubtedly assured themselves. But what a contrast Jesus provides.

Grabbing All You Can

Unlike Adam who attempted to grasp equality with God by eating of the fruit of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, Jesus "did not count equality with God a thing to be grasped" (2:6).

Maybe the world in which we live tells us to "grab all you can while you can," but Jesus did not "grab" at power as he could have. Instead, "he emptied himself, taking the form of a servant" (2:7). Jesus' humility was not a matter of thinking himself worthless, but of voluntarily passing up the use of power. He did not pour out a portion of himself, but "he emptied himself," holding back nothing for himself as a safety factor.

I like the way William L. Sullivan puts it: "Genuine humility does not arise from the sense of our pitiable kinship with the dust that is unworthy of us but from the realization of our awful nearness to a magnificence of which we are unworthy."

Jesus humbled himself taking the form of a servant and because he did, he was exalted by God. "Therefore God has highly exalted him and bestowed upon him the name which is above every name . . ." (2:9). Jesus stepped down to what turned out to be a higher, really the highest level. So he calls us to humble service, not because we are worthless or lacking temporal power, but because in pouring out our lives willingly for others, we too will be exalted with him.

Cheese Prices Show Modest Strength

-Both blocks and barrel traded
-Butter remained strong
-USDA announced May clas. and component prices

After weeks of stagnant prices, the cheese market at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange showed a little price strength Barrel cheese prices rose from $1.10 per pound on Tuesday, May 30 to $1.1250 by Friday, June 2. Prices for 40-pound blocks followed a similar path, rising from $1.10 per pound on Tuesday to $1.1250 by Friday

Butter prices remained relatively strong this week at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange Grade AA butter traded at $1.33 per pound on Wednesday, May 31 and fell to $1.3250 per pound by Friday, June 2. USDA reports that some buyers are questioning why butter prices are so strong. Yet they also reported that others are asking whether current butter stocks are adequate for late summer and fall needs.

The cheese price strength, while very modest, was surprising since extra loads of milk had to be processed over the weekend due to Monday's holiday. USDA reported that the Memorial Day weekend normally results in surplus loads of milk generated from fluid plants that shut down for a long weekend due to Monday's school closings.

So why is cheese prices showing strength? Weather may be playing a role here. Hot and humid weather across much of the South and Northeast may negatively impact future milk supplies. Cows don't feel like eating much when it's hot and that results in less milk output. USDA reports this week that milk production is declining in Southern states from Georgia to Texas. Hot temperatures in Arizona and New Mexico are resulting in less milk and lower component levels.

Pennwood Farms Relocates To Expand Dairy Operation

Duane and Andrea Stoltzfus were the first of Pennwood Farm's five household families to move to Somerset County.

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — Some 400 head of milking cows at Pennwood Farms are still adapting to the 28-stall rotary milking parlor during the hours of 2 a.m., 10 a.m., and 6 p.m.

Typically, the older cows, set in their ways, are more stubborn. The younger stock, naturally, are adapting more readily to the single-file order of entering and exiting the fully computerized facility.

Like their animals, the owners of Pennwood Dairy never before experienced a milking parlor and realize progress bring challenges.

Pennwood Farms is a partnership four-brothers who are carrying on a business begun in 1962 by their dad, Harvey Stoltzfus. They are Don, Glenn, Dwight, and Duane Stoltzfus.

On 50 acres near Morgantown, Harvey began on land he rented from his mother, with 18 cows derived from her herd.

Stoltzfus, with his wife, Mary Jane, saw Pennwood Farms dairy, like their four sons, thrive and grow until it finally had outgrown its location. Ultimately, the entire family — five households — moved across the state to Somerset County, from their home on the border of Berks and Lancaster counties.

Pennwood had purchased the local farm and Holstein herd of Lewis and Barbara Berkley, as well as the William Schultz farm, which would augment heifer housing and cropland.

The Berkley lands were ample to support the new freestall barn and milking center Pennwood planned to build. In 1999, these were constructed adjacent to existing facilities.

The freestall barn is equipped with the side and top curtains critical for maintaining temperature control and proper ventilation for cow comfort, since, in the Laurel Highland region, the four seasons are very distinct. The top curtain, unlike its side counterparts, is controlled by a thermostat.

Additionally, three big bunker silos, along with a five-bay commodity shed and several calf hutches, were built. The existing freestall barn was remodeled and a 2.5 million gallon manure pit was constructed. Dwight empties it with a 5,700-gallon capacity manure truck.

One loss in the move was a thriving custom manure hauling business they had built in Morgantown. They said, however, they hope to build a similar operation here.

Pennwood dairy spokesperson, Andrea Stoltzfus, wife of Duane and pregnant with their first child, said she and her husband were the first couple to arrive here. They milked the existing herd.

In November 1998, the couple was married one day, moved to Berlin the next day and honeymooned on the third day.

"We have had to make a lot of changes since we moved here," Andrea said of the group. "We made up at the outset a job responsibility sheet. We are still a family farm, but with different aspects as a business."

Don's speciality, for instance, is equipment repair and maintenance. Glenn makes the cropping decisions, handles the employee aspect, and manages the parlor. Herd health, breeding decisions, and merchandising are Dwight's areas of responsibility and Duane's areas are nutrition and feeding.

"Each can take over the job of the other, if necessary,"Andrea said. "Here they have the same focus and the same goal. There is no time for grudges."

Two couples are allowed time off on alternating weekends. That is equivalent to four milkings. Five part-time employees and good neighbors have been a blessing.

The Berkleys live nearby, Lewis helps with tractor driving. According to Andrea, if Harvey is not on a tractor, he comes around once a day to see what's happening.

"He loves his cattle and he loves his family," Andrea said of her father-in-law. "He wants to make sure everyone

Holloways Strive To Capture Expanding Markets

The Holloways manage 250 acres in corn, 100 acres in soybeans, 30 acres in wheat, 30 acres in barley, and 250 acres in hay. They round and square bale their hay, mostly for local horse markets.

Wrapped haylage is marketed mainly to Amish customers in southeastern Pennsylvania and is also fed to the cow herd in the winter.

Corn is raised for silage, used to feed the cattle, and the rest is sold to a grain dealer and to The Mill of Bel Air. Soybeans are sold to a grain dealer.

A big problem has been deer control at the farm. The deer are harvested when possible. They pose a huge threat to the soybeans, the "number one crop for deer," said Richard, and other crops.

Richard said he has seen 30-40 deer at a time in fields. The deer graze the heavily wooded areas at the farm's outskirts, bordering the Susquehanna River, and are protected at the local state park.

The cow/calf herd includes registered Angus and Angus crossbreds. Though most of the feeder cattle are homebred, the Holloways buy a few feeder cattle locally and in Lancaster.

The Angus are bred using AI and Roseda bulls, which are all registered.

Roseda Farm, noted Richard's son, Rick, looks closely at EPDs and other breed characteristics to determine how to improve carcasses, and thus the end product. Roseda is slowly trying to build a brand name based on these traits and is attempting to market a consistent quality, premium beef product.

The Holloways are using rotational grazing more every year for the cow/calf herd. The herd grazes 20-acre lots and are rotated about every 2-3 weeks. The feeder cattle are fed a TMR, of sorts, consisting of corn silage, barley, ground corn, protein, and minerals — all mixed at the farm.

Henry's son, Henry, owns a herd of hogs for 4-H and FFA feeder pigs. They also supply "human health research pigs," said Henry. "They're hospital pigs, of different sizes and weights, for human medical research."

Henry does the feeding for the 15-20 sows that produce about 400 head per year. Henry has four Yorkshire boars on test at Penn State. The feeder pigs are crossbred York/Hampshires.

The farm is maintained by the family, including Richard and Harriett with son Rick, 33. Jeff, 30, works on the farm on weekends and each day after his full-time, off-farm job as an auto mechanic. The Holloways have a daughter, Karen, 37, who is manager and ag consultant at The Mill of Bel Air. She also helps on the farm whenever possible.

Henry S. (Scarborough) and Barbara's son, Henry S. (Smith), 41, is owner/operator of The Mill of Bel Air. Another son, Andrew, 28, is a large animal veterinarian. Daughter Teresa, 37, works in the microbiology department at Johns Hopkins. Judy, 35, is an optometrist.

The Holloways noted that Darlington boasts the "biggest pocket of preserved land in Harford County," noted Henry. About 4,000-5,000 adjoining acres from a variety of farms have been preserved under either the state or county preservation program.

Farmer Program To Host Twilight Pesticide Meeting

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — If you're tired of enduring endless overhead presentations and hard seats at winter meetings to obtain pesticide credits, join the Eastern Lancaster County Young Farmers at an outdoor twilight meeting.

The young farmers will gather for the annual twilight pesticide meeting at the Sylvan Blank Farm on south Custer Avenue in New Holland Thursday, June 22, from 7 p.m.-9 p.m.

Come out to observe popular corn and soybean herbicides in a side-by-side comparison.

This year's plot focuses on postemergent corn and soybean treatments. Alfalfa and corn scouting will round out the program.

Two core and two category credits will be available for farmers with pesticide licenses.

Chesapeake Bay Technician Helps Farmers Keep Clean Water Clean

Streambank fencing is the latest buzz word in conservation. Martie Hetherington, a Chesapeake Bay technician for Schuylkill Conservation District, encourages farmers to fence animals away from the streambanks to prevent water pollution.

JAYNE SEBRIGHT
Lancaster Farming Staff

POTTSVILLE (Schuylkill Co.) — Chesapeake Bay technician Martie Hetherington is a certified crop advisor, certified to write nutrient management plans, and has received her pesticide license.

Although the only certification she needs as a Bay technician is her certification in nutrient management, Hetherington applied for the other two because it helps her do her job better.

"I wanted to make sure I could talk the farmer's talk," said Hetherington. "Keeping up my accreditation helps me stay abreast of not just what is happening in nutrient management, but what is involved in the culture of crop production."

"People think that since farmers have planted crops for hundreds of years, there shouldn't be too many changes," said Hetherington. "But there is always some new regulation, product, or technique that you have to learn. My accreditation keeps me from getting stuck in my box."

Hetherington works with Schuylkill county farmers who are located in the Chesapeake Bay / Susquehanna River basin. About a half of the county's farmland is located in the Chesapeake Bay area, while the other half is located in the Delaware River basin.

"In this county, most farmers sign up for the Chesapeake Bay program after hearing about it through word of mouth," said Hetherington. "My farmers are my best salespeople. Sometimes farmers can be apprehensive about working with the government. But then they see their neighbor installing a new manure facility and find out we're not too bad to work with."

Hetherington helps farmers in the Chesapeake Bay area develop Ag Waste Storage Plans for their farms. Part of the plan includes writing a nutrient management plan and a conservation plan. Through the Chesapeake Bay program, the farmers can receive money to help fund new manure facilities and other improvements included in the plan.

"The best way to sell a farmer on developing a conservation plan and a nutrient management plan on their farm is by showing them the bottom line," said Hetherington. "You have to show them how it is going to benefit the farmer. They can save a lot of money using less fertilizer once they take into consideration the nutrients from their manure."

Hetherington coordinates the Chesapeake Bay program for Schuylkill County Conservation District. The program's funding comes from the Environmental Protection Agency, funnels through the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection, and then comes to the districts. It's Hetherington's job to distribute the money to farmers.

"We work with farmers to determine what Best Management Practices they would like to see installed on their farm," said Hetherington. "Our main emphasis in the program is to keep clean water clean."

Hetherington works closely with the USDA's Natural Resource and Conservation Service's soil conservationist through the program. "We install diversions around barn yards, roof gutters, and other things to prevent polluting rain water. Manure storage facilities are probably the biggest item we install, but we also try to determine what will work best overall."

Since Act 6 or the Nutrient Management law came into existence, all nutrient management plans that Hetherington writes have to be in compliance with Act 6.

"All Chesapeake Bay technicians must be certified to write and approve nutrient management plans," said Hetherington. "I'll write a plan for any farmer who is involved in the Bay program. However, I encourage other farmers, especially farmers with concentrated animal feeding operations, to work with private consultants to write plans."

Hetherington has been writing nutrient management plans since the late 1980s. "We're very fortunate that the Chesapeake Bay program was the only program for a while that had a consistent amount of money. The sad part is I can only deal with half of the farmers in this county. The farmers located in the Delaware River basin would like help, too, but we don't have the funding for them."

According to Hetherington, the Chesapeake Bay program funding gets more limited each year. "We have to compete more and more between counties, and we seem to be losing money."

Still, Hetherington enjoys every aspect of her job, especially her ability to help farmers. She has been working for the Conservation District for 12 years.

"I grew up in a suburb in Bucks County and my mother had the county agent come look at a tree in our yard," said Hetherington. "When I met the extension agent, I thought, 'wow, what a cool job.' "

So Hetherington went to the University of Delaware to study plant science and agriculture education. She interned during college as a summer assistant and was the Bucks County horticulture extension agent for seven years. Then, after marrying a potato farmer, Martie moved to Schuylkill County to take the Chesapeake Bay position at the Conservation District.

"I've always been interested in education and in helping farmers," said Hetherington. "Between extension and this position, I feel like I am doing what I always wanted to do."

Calling herself one of the dinosaurs of the Chesapeake Bay program, Martie enjoys working with the farmers and the diversity in her job. Her quest to learn more and maintain certification in crop advising, pesticides, and nutrient management is part of her drive to go the extra mile.

"It's a personal thing for me," said Hetherington. "The farmers don't care whether I am certified or not, but it's something more I can offer them even if they don't know I have it. It helps me answer their questions and solve their problems better."

Acres of beautiful farmland are Schuylkill County's best kept secret. Martie Hetherington works with farmers to help conserve water and other natural resources while improving the bottom line with conservation planning.

Agri-Services Agency Returns Substantial Dividend To Farmers

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — For the third consecutive year, Agri-Services Agency (ASA) has declared a substantial dividend for farmers enrolled in its workers' compensation safety group in Pennsylvania. More than $350,000 in returned premiums has been distributed to agribusiness owners in the ASA Safety Group this year alone.

"Since the inception of the ASA Safety Group six years ago, participants have seen their workers' compensation insurance costs drop more than 50 percent," said ASA Vice President Gene Madill.

The Agri-Services Safety Group has taken important steps to monitor and help reduce the incidence of occupational injuries and illness associated with farming, explained Madill. "Our record of declaring substantial dividends is a direct result of our emphasis on safety awareness, as well as the cost control efforts of the program. Many agribusiness owners received as much as 30 percent of their already discounted premiums back this year," he said.

At a recent agricultural reception in Harrisburg, ASA presented Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes, Jr. with a symbolic check for $353,027, representing the dividends returned to agricultural employers in Pennsylvania.

In applauding ASA's performance, Secretary Hayes said, "Agri-Services Agency's efforts have been successful in educating Pennsylvania farmers about the need for safety, and in turn, are saving them money through the discounted rates of their workers' compensation safety group. Pennsylvania agriculture has benefited greatly from this initiative."

Madill reported that the Agri-Services Safety Group continues to grow rapidly as a result of the value that it is bringing to agriculture employers. ASA workers' compensation coverage is available to those involved in production agriculture in most states in the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic regions of the country.

Workers' compensation coverage is among the many competitively priced insurance programs offered through ASA, which has been providing insurance programs to the agricultural sector for more than 30 years. As an agricultural insurance specialist, ASA also provides health, dental, life, disability, and long-term care insurance. For more information on the wide array of coverages available from ASA, call 1-800-654-8840.

is as successful as they can be."

She reports that in Morgantown, Mary Jane managed a bridal shop over a garage. In fact, a bridal veil hung over a replica Holstein cow's head at the farm sign.

Don and Joanne's children are Ashley and Collin. Joanne, a 4-H youth development agent works for the Somerset County Cooperative Extension and is Pennwood's chief financial officer.

Glenn and Gail's children are Justine, Madison, and Katerina. Dwight and Melanie have no children, but, through her, Jersey cows became united with the Pennwood Holsteins.

"When Melanie married Dwight, she brought a Jersey with her," Andrea said.

The 40 milking Jerseys aren't intimidated in the least by the big black and whites around them. "They compete very well," Andrea said. "At the bunk space, they are aggressive and competitive for food. If they want something, they are aggressive and push the Holstein out of the stall."

Most, but not all of the herd, are registered animals.

Gail, Andrea, and Melanie do milking several mornings each week. And Mary Jane occasionally helps in the Westfalia parlor that operates like a merry-go-round. A track under the carousel allows its wheels to go around.

One person operates the parlor during milking time and another moves cows into the holding area and scrapes alleys.

After exiting the parlor, each cow must walk through a hoof cleaning bath, followed by a second bath containing a hoof cleaning solution. The cows have been bred to have strength in their feet and legs.

They went with a rotary milking parlor, because it was the obvious best use of space and human resources, Andrea said. In an hour, 100-120 cows go through it. The actual milking time is some 3½ hours. Cleanup is another hour.

Cows with special needs are immediately identified in the computerized operation. It automatically separates them from the main herd for pen pack. During a cow's tenure in pen pack, her milk is discarded while Dwight gives her some extra TLC and attention. The base bed in pen pack is sawdust and chopped straw is added daily.

"The parlor is set up to sort out the cows," Andrea said.

All data, including production records from individual cows, is automatically recorded in computers. In the main office, adjacent to the parlor, general business is done. The Herdman's office is stationed next to pen pack, because equipment and medications for the animals are there.

Andrea is a Massachusetts native who met her husband when the National Holstein Convention was held in Michigan. She grew up with oxen and is starting them at Pennwood.

In the Pennwood Farms 28-stall milking parlor, a 400-head herd is being milked.

On two properties, Pennwood raises enough hay, corn, and alfalfa needed to sustain the primary needs of the herd. Some 500 acres are their own and 250 more rented for crops.

Pennwood young stock numbers some 350 head.

"The milking cows don't go on pasture unless they are dry," Andrea said. "Our cows are very content."

As far as production, the Holsteins are averaging 79 pounds of milk a day and the Jerseys, 51 pounds a day. Everyday, Galliker's Dairy in Johnstown is hauling nearly 30,000 pounds of milk shipped by the Pennwood Dairy.

The stainless steel bulk milk tank at the parlor has a holding capacity for some 5,200 gallons of milk, she said.

Justine and Ashley will show 4-H animals for the first time this year.

On Saturday, Aug. 5, Pennwood Farms will host the state Holstein picnic along Rt. 160 just south of Berlin. In conjunction, the Stoltzfus family will also hold an open house, so their modern facilities can be toured.

Huge Sundae Built On Capitol Steps

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) - The Pennsylvania dairy industry's advertising efforts with ties to June Dairy Month promotion reverberated across the commonwealth, Wednesday noon, when officials of milk promotion groups built a giant 8-foot ice cream sundae on the capitol steps and invited urban radio and television station celebrities to participate in a "Milk Mustache" contest.

Sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East, and the American Dairy Associationairy Council Middle Atlantic, 126 gallons of Green's premium vanilla ice cream were used, along with 10 gallons of Hershey's chocolate syrup, 5 gallons of Hershey's classic carmel syrup, and 5 gallons of chopped nuts from Zimmerman's Nut Company. Then they dished it out free to anyone who happened to be in the area while the recorders and TV cameras were rolling for the six o'clock news and the evening editions of the newspapers and talk shows Thursday morning.

State Agriculture Secretary, Sam Hayes Jr., brought greetings from Gov. Tom Ridge, and read a proclamation officially recognizing June as dairy month. Richard Waybright, chairman of the Pennsylvania program, accepted the proclamation on behalf of the dairy industry. Many of the county dairy princesses and their coordinators were on hand to help make the sundae and help to scoop ice cream.

Debra Summerall, industry relations manager and spokesperson for PDPP, said the state's dairy farmers work diligently 365 days a year to provide consumers with a fresh supply of milk and quality dairy products. "By celebrating June Dairy Month, we are honoring the dairy industry and giving citizens of Pennsylvania an opportunity to thank dairy farmers", she said.

Milk is the official Pennsylvania beverage and the state has 9,900 dairy farms that produce 10.85 billion pounds or 1.36 billion gallons of milk each year. The state ranks 3rd in the nation for production of ice cream; 3rd in butter; 4th for milk production; and 6th for the production of cheese. This capitol steps event is part of many efforts across the nation this month, to promote the good taste and nutritional values of dairy products through dairy farmer supported check-off funds.

Organic Farming Is Good For The Ground And The Bottom Line

For David, organic farming is as convenient as conventional farming. Although it does add more labor, he doesn't have the added expenses of costly medicines and fertilizer bills.

JAYNE SEBRIGHT
Lancaster Farming Staff

Editor's Note: This is the second article in a special June Dairy Month series on "Dairy Profit Possibilities."

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — For David Martin of Manheim, it seemed more practical to work with nature than to use chemicals. To him, organic farming was just the right thing to do.

David and his wife Robbin milk 95 cows and farm 160 acres. His farm and dairy herd has been certified organic since 1995.

The Martins and their 12 children, Melissa (20), Joshua (18), Laura (17), Carla (15), Abigail (13), Suzanna (11), Naomi (9), Ramona (8), Caleb (6), Noah (4), Samuel (2), and Sarah (9 months old), worked together on the organic farm to raise a high quality product and sell it at a good price.

In fact, the Martins market their milk to Natural By Nature of Parmalat for $19 per hundredweight. That's about seven dollars higher than what the average dairy farmer is getting paid. They also sell organic-raised beef on their farm and have about 200 customers who come from as far away as New Jersey to buy their beef.

"One of the advantages to farming organically is that once you see it as functional, you can experience the whole system," said Martin. "You really get attached to what you're doing."

David started farming with his father Daniel and was brought into part-ownership in 1974. He decided to convert the farm and dairy operation to organic in 1990.

His father still helps on the farm and runs the broiler house, where they have 50,000 chickens. Lately David has been helping more with the chickens and is working with his father to get the broiler operation organically-certified.

"I always thought that chemicals were the answer to everything," said Martin. "But whenever I used chemicals for one thing, it seemed to generate some other problem. It seemed just as convenient to work with nature than to use chemicals."

Converting the farm to organic took four years. The land had to be farmed organically for three years before it was certified organic. After that, the cows had to be milked for one year while eating organic feeds.

Obtaining his certification through Pennsylvania Certified Organic, headquartered in Centre Hall, Martin is prohibited from using any hormones, antibiotics, or other synthetic medicines. Any medicines necessary to save a cow's life can be used, but then that cow must be sold to a conventional herd.

The requirements also include animal husbandry issues, such as keeping the cows well-bedded and using novocaine to dehorn the calves. At age two or three, the cows are no longer allowed to be dehorned.

In place of normal health practices, Martin uses biotherapy alternatives. "When we switched to organic, we gave the vet a copy of the standards so he would have it as a reference," said Martin.

On the land, Martin can only use natural substances, such as dust and manure, to eliminate pest problems and fertilize crops. "I know some farmers who use substances like sugar and fishmeal to sweeten plants and discourage bugs."

Martin raises corn, alfalfa, grass, soybeans, and a little barley on his farm. He also has 35 acres of pastureland. The animals do graze on pasture during the summer, but the cows get a total mixed ration all year long.

When he first converted to organic, Martin admits to seeing some decreases in field crop yields. But now the decreases in yields are minimal.

"The first couple of years were affected by the transition," said Martin. "But now my yields are similar to other producers'."

One thing that changed Martin's way of thinking was a study from Rodale Institute that compared crops grown conventionally and organically over a ten-year period. "The conventional crops had the highest individual annual yields, but the organic land yielded the most over the ten year period."

Martin's crops are rotated on a six-year plan with three years of alfalfa or pasture followed by corn, then a double crop of beans and barley, another year of corn, and back to hay.

"My biggest problem when I switched to organic was Burr Cucumber or wild pickle," said Martin. "I was able to reduce that problem because of my crop rotation."

Martin's herd of mostly Holsteins, with a couple of Jerseys and Dutch-Belted crosses, averages 16,000 pounds of milk with 3.8 percent fat and 3.1 percent protein. According to Martin, production has a lot to do with how you handle the cows.

"When we push our cows for production, we can get more out of an organic herd," said Martin. "But we don't push our cows hard. They last longer and have fewer health problems."

According to Martin, organic farming does take a little more labor than conventional farming does. And solving problems on the farm can be more difficult.

"Sometimes you can't do anything to resolve a problem because of the requirements," said Martin. "You need to be on top of what's happening so you can prevent problems before they happen."

One of Martin's biggest challenges with organic farming is keeping detailed records. "They need to be sufficient enough for the inspector to review," said Martin. "I like having good records, but I don't always have the details the way they want them."

Now in his fifth year of organic farming, Martin admits that there's a learning curve that comes with making it work.

"You really have to believe in it and let it get into your heart."

Abigail and Suzanna are responsible for feeding the calves, which are fed organic milk and feeds to meet certified organic requirements.

Organic Dairying Dollars And Sense

According to Ned MacArthur, vice president of operations for Natural Dairy Products Corp., increased profits from organic dairying range based on the farmer's management skills and feed methods.

"It's hard to pin-point an average profit above conventional dairying because you have some farmers who are running a really successful operation and some who are just keeping it above the line," said MacArthur.

"It also makes a difference when you're grazing your herd," he said. "It doesn't matter if you're a conventional or organic dairy farmer, grazing is the most inexpensive way to make milk."

Start up costs for organic dairy farms include $500 to 600 for the paperwork involved with the certification and about 12 months of added feed costs while your herd is converted to organic.

"Organic feed costs about 30 percent more than conventional feeds," said MacArthur. "The farmer has to absorb that costs for the transition period. That's why I encourage farmers to push grazing as much as they can to keep costs down."

The price for organic milk on average is about five dollars more than conventionally-produced milk. "Right now the industry is paying between $19 and 20 per hundredweight for organic milk."

Natural Dairy Products Corp. markets its organic products, which are sold under the brand name, Natural By Nature, all over the East Coast. The products have the same shelf life as regular dairy products.

According to MacArthur, organic milk processors have people available to help farmers get started in organic dairying. "That's basically what I do."

Milk Marketing Board Maintains Over-Order Premium

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board Chairwoman Beverly R. Minor announced that the Board Members voted unanimously for a $1.00 over-order premium to be paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers per one hundred pounds of their Class I milk (bottled milk) that is produced, processed, and sold in Pennsylvania.

The premium will be effective for a period of six months beginning July 1, 2000. This action is the result of a public hearing held on May 3, 2000.

The previous over-order premium of $1.20 ($1.45 including the fuel adjustment premium) was due to expire June 30, 2000. Although market conditions still warrant the necessity of an over-order premium, the dollar amount was reduced by $.20.

Testimony presented at the hearing showed that premiums in the surrounding states ranged from $.83 in New Jersey to $1.30 in Maryland and Delaware. Maintaining an over-order premium in Pennsylvania of $1.45 would be difficult and could have an adverse affect on Pennsylvania Dairy farmers.

The Board Members stress that this action has no affect on the $.25 per hundred pounds of Class I milk that was added to the current over-order premium to help offset the increase in fuel costs. Beginning July 1, 2000, the total over-order premium placed on Class I milk that is produced, processed, and sold in Pennsylvania will be $1.25.

The over-order premium is a dollar amount added to the minimum Class I price to be paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers that is announced by the Federal Government and the Milk Marketing Board monthly.

Since 1988, the Milk Marketing Board has mandated that a premium be paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers for their Class I milk that is produced, processed, and sold in Pennsylvania. Through March 2000, the premium has generated an additional $200,512,000 to Pennsylvania dairy farmers.

May Class I Price Announced

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Milk Marketing Board (MMB) announced the prices to be paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers for May Class I milk as an average of $15.33 in the western areas of the Commonwealth, and an average of $15.81 in the central and eastern areas of the Commonwealth. Class I milk is beverage type milk.

These prices do include the current over-order premium of $1.20 per one hundred pounds of milk, and the fuel adjustment premium of $.25 per one hundred pounds of milk.

Since 1988, the MMB has mandated over-order premiums on Class I milk due to adverse conditions affecting the Pennsylvania dairy farmer. The current premium of $1.20 was ordered to offset losses due to drought conditions.

Chairwoman Beverly R. Minor announced that since the inception of the MMB's over-order premium in 1988, Pennsylvania dairy farmers have received an additional $200,512,000 in income.

Youth Conference Promotes Personal Development, Community Service

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Even though school is out, summer can still be a time for learning and development.

This summer, more than 420 teens from around Ohio will gather on the Columbus campus of Ohio State University to participate in leadership, citizenship, and educational activities during the 84th Ohio 4-H Youth Expo.

The annual conference, which takes place June 14-16, lets 4-H'ers focus on an area of interest, participate in a related service project, and learn strategies for initiating similar activities at home.

The service-learning component of Youth Expo was introduced two years ago and, based on the response of 4-H'ers and the community, will continue this year, said Allen Auck, an Ohio State University Extension associate for 4-H youth development who is coordinating the program.

On Thursday, June 15, the 4-H'ers will participate in small group, all-day, hands-on workshops on topics such as clowning, history, and pet therapy. The next day, the same groups will perform community services that incorporate the materials from Thursday's workshops. They will clown for patients at local hospitals; clean, repair and work with materials at the Ohio Historical Society Museum and Ohio Village; and take pets to visit residents at a Columbus-area retirement village.

"4-H has always valued giving something back to the community," Auck said. "Youth Expo will help give teen leaders the tools they need to implement more formal community service projects in their hometowns."

Conference delegates also will tour Ohio State's campus, experience college life by staying in student dorms, and take part in a variety of recreational and social events. Any youth ages 14 to 19 and in 4-H can attend the summer youth conference. For information on the conference, teens can contact their local extension office.

Dairylea/DFA Hold Legislative Breakfast

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dairylea Cooperative Inc. and Dairy Farmers of America (DFA) recently held a joint legislative breakfast in Harrisburg, Pa. The event provided an opportunity for members of the two Cooperatives to meet with state-level legislators and officials to discuss issues that are important to agriculture.

More than 100 legislators, government officials and aides interacted with the dairy farmers at the reception held in the East Wing of the Capitol.

During the breakfast, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr. met with Dairylea President Clyde Rutherford, DFA Northeast Council Chairman Lewis Gardner and Dairy Marketing Services Chief Executive Officer Rick Smith.

The meeting with Secretary Hayes focused on environmental issues and how to provide assistance to dairy farmers dealing with the new federal Concentrated Animal Feeding Operations (CAFOs) regulations. Additionally, they discussed the current low milk pricing cycle and strategies that could be explored to help enhance financial returns to farmers in Pennsylvania.

Dairylea Cooperative is an agricultural service organization, cooperatively owned by 2,700 Northeast dairy farmers. Dairy Farmers of America is a dairy marketing cooperative with 24,000 dairy farmer members in 45 states. In 1999, the two cooperatives formed Dairy Marketing Services, LLC to jointly manage their milk-marketing operations, as well as assist with other common activities.

'Green Milk' Successfully Test-Marketed At Mid-Atlantic Stores

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — People are concerned about protecting water quality and some even are willing to pay for it, said a scientist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

The Environmental Quality Initiative Inc. — a collaboration between Penn State, the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture, the Rodale Institute, and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency — recently tested people's willingness to purchase milk in an eco-labeled milk carton, "with successful results," said Les Lanyon, professor of soil fertility.

With support from a Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection grant, Chesapeake Milk hit the shelves in December 1998. Produced by dairy farmers in southeastern Pennsylvania, the milk in specially marked cartons was test-marketed for more than a year at Fresh Fields grocery stores in Pennsylvania, Maryland, northern Virginia, and Washington, D.C.

"When consumers purchase Chesapeake Milk, dairy farmers who are doing a good job of protecting water quality receive a premium," Lanyon explained. "A nickel per half-gallon goes directly to these farmers."

To participate, farmers undergo a yearly evaluation that examines how well farmstead structures and management practices protect water quality on the farm. The evaluation, performed by Leon Weber, Rodale Institute's on-farm coordinator, looks at six areas around the dairy farmstead, such as whether cows are kept out of streams, how barnyard runoff is managed, and how pesticides are stored and handled. So far, 20 Pennsylvania dairy farmers have participated.

"Even farmers who didn't qualify for the program ended up making changes," said Weber. "Farmers are concerned about the environment and realize these practices can make business sense as well."

"Agriculture is still considered by many to be the number one cause of nonpoint source pollution," Lanyon said. "Historically, government cost-share programs paid for some of the cost of water quality protection on farms to reduce the 'burden' on farmers. But many people have become disillusioned with the level of environmental quality resulting from this approach. Other methods, such as direct regulation, are likely to be implemented.

"Typically, regulations specify conditions that must be met or practices that must be installed," he said. "To deal with additional costs, farmers often have to increase milk production or increase the number of cows they milk. This could accelerate the evolution of farms in the 'get bigger or get out' direction and does little to preserve small family farms."

This issue is particularly serious in Pennsylvania, which ranks fourth in the nation in milk production and where average herd size is only two-thirds of the national average. Lancaster County, where the dairy herds are smaller than the state norm, has the highest dairy cow population per square mile in the U.S. At the same time, more than half of the state — including Lancaster County — contributes freshwater to the Chesapeake Bay.

"Manure and sediment that are allowed to run off from Pennsylvania farms can cause serious problems in the bay," said Turner Odell, staff attorney for the Chesapeake Bay Foundation. "It is important that we encourage farmers to use environmentally sensitive practices that protect water quality, but we also understand that these practices must be economically sustainable."

The group learned that introducing an eco-labeled product is not without its challenges. "It's not easy to achieve buy-in from players in the food system whose agendas may not include environmental protection," Lanyon said. "It's also not easy to communicate new ideas to milk consumers.

"However, we learned that dairy farmers are very interested in this effort. Top government officials also supported the concept. And consumers purchased enough of the Chesapeake Milk for premiums to go back to farmers.

"Now, the challenge is to create more opportunities for eco-labeled products," Lanyon said. "If we're successful, the costs of environmental protection will be shared by those who care and are committed enough to act on what they value."

Question: We would like to lower our somatic cell count. We use our DHIA records to identify problem cows and would like an opinion on how to handle them.

If you are looking for someone to give you a magic potion to cure cows of mastitis, I am not the one. Treating cows with existing mastitis or high cell counts should be planned with your veterinarian. It appears that you are on the right track by using records found on the SCC Management Report to properly identify cows that are the most problematic and need to be high on the priority list. When it comes to managing SCC, prevention has more impact than curing attempts I would like to show you some information that your cows have been providing for the past couple of years that really emphasizes this.

I used both the Pa. DHIA SCC Management Report and the Pa. DHIA Herd Summary Report II to access this information. I would like to concentrate specifically on differences between new and chronic infections Your attempts at treatment will often be on these chronic cows with little long lasting results. New infections are cows that had a linear SCC of 4 for the first time during the current lactation. Chronic cows are those that reached this same score two or more times during the lactation.

What I find to be of particular interest is that the level of chronically infected cows stays pretty much the same for the herd over the past two years as indicated in the two right columns The other thing that is noted is the strong correlation between the eight months (indicated in red) where levels of new infections are highest and the resulting increase in the bulk tank SCC. It becomes apparent that we need to shift our focus on mastitis management from treatment to prevention if we are to be successful at lowering SCC

Your veterinarian also does not have a magic potion for mastitis woes. What he does have is the knowledge and experience at helping you work toward mastitis prevention management. You should contact him today to set up a program for your farm. Continue to use your DHIA SCC records to help determine what that strategy should be and if your new or current plan is working As a goal you should limit new infections each month to 5% as noted on your reports. If you can attain this goal, then your bulk tank SCC should drop under 200,000 consistently.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Prospects For Improving Fertility Of Bull Semen

Gary Killian and Dan Hagen, Penn State Dairy and Animal Science Department

Efficient reproduction is critically important to the financial success of the dairy cattle industry. More than 70% of the dairy cows in the United States are bred by artificial insemination using semen from genetically superior sires. On the average, about 50% of these matings result in birth of calves Given these results, there is considerable interest in improving pregnancy rates to shorten the average calving interval for a dairy herd, thereby increasing profits

Researchers at Penn State University's College of Agricultural Sciences are studying how the fertility of sperm from bulls is influenced by proteins that are present in the male and female reproductive tracts The dairy bulls used for artificial insemination are unique because extensive data have been gathered to document their individual fertility Fertility assessment is based on use of their semen to inseminate thousands of females, a feat made possible only through the use of artificial insemination and good record keeping. Because the fertility of individual bulls is known, comparisons between the protein composition of the seminal fluid in which sperm are suspended are possible for semen from higher and lower fertility bulls Comparisons are made between bulls by preparing protein maps of seminal fluid using a technique known as two-dimensional polyacrylamide gel electrophoresis. The technique provides information about the protein size and pH associated with the more than 50 proteins in the map

Penn State researchers discovered that two proteins are present in greater concentrations in seminal fluid of higher fertility bulls than in lower fertility bulls. Additionally, lower fertility bulls tended to have greater concentrations of two different proteins. These studies are painstaking in nature, because the fertility proteins represent much less than 1% of all of the proteins present in seminal fluid.

What are the fertility proteins in seminal fluid? The process of identifying the fertility proteins involves determining the sequence of amino acids, or protein building blocks, which are unique to each protein The process is tedious because of the small amount of protein in an individual spot of a map However, working with colleagues at the National Institutes of Health, and the Osaka Bioscience Institute, Japan, the two high fertility proteins were identified as osteopontin and prostaglandin-D-synthase. The identity of the two low fertility proteins in seminal fluid remains unknown.

Osteopontin was originally discovered in bone matrix but also has been found in many other tissues of the body, where osteopontin facilitates attachment and signaling among cells. Prostaglandin D synthase is present in high concentrations in human cerebral spinal fluid where it appears to be involved in sleep induction. Prostaglandin D synthase may function in prostaglandin metabolism and or in transport of retinoids such as vitamin A, which is essential for normal sperm production.

The major challenge now confronting Penn State scientists is to understand how the high fertility proteins actually improve male fertility. In order to study the effect of the proteins on sperm, bioassays are being used to determine whether treatment of sperm with these proteins improves the rate of fertilization and embryo development in vitro. If a beneficial effect were shown in the laboratory, field trials would follow. The field trials would be used to confirm that cows inseminated with sperm treated with high fertility proteins have improved pregnancy rates. Unfortunately, conducting the studies outlined above requires more of the high fertility proteins than can be realistically purified from seminal fluid. Producing recombinant forms of the proteins in the laboratory using molecular biology techniques is solving this problem.

This story began by recognizing that dairy bulls used for artificial insemination are unique experimental animals with documented fertility. These circumstances have made it possible to establish, using a variety of analytical tools, that proteins associated with fertility do exist in bull semen. As new information becomes available on how these proteins may function to enhance fertility, practical applications are likely to emerge. This information should be useful in developing diagnostic tests for screening bulls of unknown fertility, and boosting the fertility of lower fertility bulls by the addition of the high fertility proteins to semen extenders used for artificial insemination. These developments are likely to improve pregnancy rates for a dairy herd and, in turn, farm profitability.

Another current area of research has potential impact on reproductive performance of livestock species. A laboratory assay method, known as a sperm-binding assay, is being further developed to compare the fertility of an individual male with other males. This assay is based on the ability of sperm of a variety of species to bind to a membrane derived from chicken eggs. The objective of the current studies is to develop a method that can be used to identify young prospective herd sires that have the highest fertility. Although this research began only recently, results to date are encouraging. This line of research will not make it possible to improve the fertility of an individual male. Instead, by providing a means to identify the most fertile males and making it possible to rank males according to their fertility, it should lead to more-informed sire selection, higher herd fertility and greater profits for dairy and livestock producers.

Survey: Consumers Don't Know Most Dairy Farms Are Family-Owned

ROSEMONT, Il. — A striking example of the gap between American consumer knowledge and the realities of dairy farming, a recent dairy industry survey indicates a majority of U.S. consumers believes most dairy farms are not owned by farmers and their families, according to Linda Eatherton, vice president of industry relations for Dairy Management Inc.™ (DMI).

In a random nationwide survey by Roper Starch Worldwide, consumers were asked to identify who they think owns more than 90 percent of dairy farms in the United States. Thirty percent said agriculturally-related corporations own dairy farms, while another 21 percent said other business corporations or food manufacturers. About ten percent said the government owns them.

In reality, according to Eatherton, U.S. Department of Agriculture data indicates families own and operate more than 99 percent of all U.S. dairy farms.

"This misperception about who produces our nation's milk is just one example showing the vast gap between consumer beliefs and the realities of dairy farming," she said. "As more consumers become further removed from production agriculture, the gap continues to widen."

DMI and the regional dairy organizations, American Dairy Association/Dairy Council Middle Atlantic and Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, have partnered with other dairy industry groups to develop a long-term education program to address and correct such consumer misperceptions.

"The dairy industry is united to reach misinformed consumers with factual information on a wide range of dairy farming issues," said Eatherton.

Farmer-funded education efforts allow the dairy industry to explain its story, she. "Consumers can now begin learning the facts about herd health measures dairy farmers practice daily, our high safety standards that ensure quality dairy products, and environmental stewardship programs being developed across the country."

These consumer awareness programs also benefit dairy farmers, Eatherton said. "The more confident the public is about how milk is produced, the more confident they'll be in selecting dairy products off the shelves at their local supermarket."

USDA Amends Refrigeration, Labeling Requirements For Officially ID'd Shell Eggs

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA has revised its regulations governing the voluntary shell egg grading program by amending the refrigeration and labeling requirements for eggs identified with an official USDA consumer grade.

"These actions will allow Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) graders to ensure that cartons of eggs with the shield-shaped grademark have been continuously stored under refrigeration no greater than 45 degrees Fahrenheit," said Kathleen Merrigan, AMS administrator. "AMS will also ensure that egg cartons with grademarks are labeled to indicate that refrigeration is required."

Refrigeration is a major factor in maintaining the quality of shell eggs. AMS believes that these actions will promote the preservation of quality eggs. Consumers should look for the official USDA grademark on the carton for quality assurance when purchasing shell eggs.

Amendments to regulations by USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) mandated that egg handlers store shell eggs destined for the ultimate consumer at no greater than 45 degrees F. To ensure that officially graded eggs are refrigerated at temperatures that conform to FSIS' mandatory requirements, AMS changed its maximum storage temperature requirement to 45 degrees F.

The amendments were published as an interim final rule, with request for comments, in the Oct. 22 issue of the Federal Register. Prior to that time, AMS required that officially graded eggs be refrigerated at temperatures no greater than 60 degrees F.

The five comments received stated general understanding of and agreement with the need for AMS regulations to conform to the FSIS regulations. Other suggestions and concerns expressed in the comments either have or will be addressed by the agency. Therefore, the agency affirms the provisions of the interim rule as a final rule without change, effective June 30, 2000.

The amendments may be viewed electronically at http://www.ams.usda.gov/poultry/regulations.

NCFC Concerned EPA Sulfur Diesel Proposal Could Jeopardize Farmer-Owned Petroleum System

WASHINGTON, D.C. — David Graves, National Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCFC) president and CEO, expressed deep concern that the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) proposed sulfur diesel rule will move too far too fast if it includes a standard significantly below 50 ppm.

"We have been working with EPA, and we appreciate the agency's recognition of the unique structure and challenges of farmer-owned cooperative refiners, as well as compliance flexibility proposals we understand may be in the proposed rule," Graves said. "However, we remain concerned that an overly stringent sulfur diesel standard could unnecessarily harm U.S. agriculture and rural America, particularly during a time of continuing economic hardship that threatens the survival of many farmers and ranchers."

The co-op leader pointed out that farm and other off-road uses will be impacted by the new highway standard since most of the distribution system can handle only one grade of diesel fuel.

NCFC is urging that a final rule establish an on-road sulfur diesel fuel cap of about 50 ppm, a 90 percent reduction from the current level and provide maximum compliance flexibility.

An ultralow standard could lead to unintended harm to American agriculture and rural America by jeopardizing the economic viability of farmer-owned cooperative refiners and creating conditions for fuel supply disruptions and excessively higher prices for farmers for both on-farm and highway fuels. Graves distributed copies of a May 9 letter to EPA Administrator Carol Browner which was signed by 24 agricultural organizations that expressed similar concerns.

"We look forward to working with the agency to achieve a final rule that is compatible with continued economic viability in American agriculture and environmental progress. Just as our constituents need and want cleaner air, they also require reliable and affordable fuel supplies," Graves said.

American agriculture is vitally dependent in carrying out its food, natural fiber, renewable energy, and other missions upon a reliable and affordable supply of diesel fuel. Though less than 2 percent of the refining industry, farmer cooperatives account for about 40 percent of all the on-farm fuel use in the U.S. and are unique in that the customer is also the owner, according to the NCFC. Farmer cooperatives also supply much of the highway diesel and home heating oil needs in rural America.

An ultra-low sulfur diesel standard could increase the threat of supply disruptions, particularly in rural America, by effectively reducing refinery capacity; force many refiners to produce more costly ultra-low sulfur diesel fuel for farm and other off-highway uses due to distribution limitations, particularly in the agricultural heartland; and jeopardize the economic viability of farmer-owned refineries, NCFC noted. Costs for farmers and other rural consumers could range from a 5 cents per gallon increase if sulfur levels are set at 50 ppm to 10 cents or more at 15 ppm. Supply disruptions would cause much larger price spikes.

NCFC is a nationwide association of cooperative businesses owned and controlled by farmers. Additional information about NCFC can be found at the Website, www.ncfc.org.

Wil-Rich Unveils New Disc V-Ripper

WAHPETON, N.D. — The new V957 DDR Ripper from Wil-Rich Manufacturing makes short work of tough fall tillage.

Available in five- or seven-shank models with 30-inch spacing, or a nine-shank model with 24-inch spacing, the V957 features hydraulically controlled disk gangs.

Built especially for use with tough residue, the new disc ripper boasts 28-inch x 5/16-inch notched blades mounted on a two 3/16-inch gang shaft. The blades are spaced on 15-inch with a 7½-inch cut between the front and rear gangs. The V957 also has auto-reset shanks with 5,000-pound trip pressure and 16-inch trip clearance.

Wil-Rich has engineered the V957 ripper to withstand tough use under a wide range of field conditions. Its frame and level-lift tongue are rugged 7-inch x 5-inch tubular steel.

The new V957 DDR Ripper from Wil-Rich Manufacturing makes short work of tough fall tillage.

Standard on the unit are a heavy-duty 4-inch x 4-inch pole jack, a walking tandem axle, and 12.5L-15 12-ply tires. An optional heavy-duty three-bar harrow is available for a rear leveling attachment.

Barenbrug's Perennial Ryegrass For The USA Details Its Success

OGDENSBURG, N.J. — Barenbrug's Perennial Ryegrass is proving to be successful throughout the U.S.A. Barenbrug now offers an informative brochure about its perennial ryegrass, which educates the farmer about the specie's winter hardiness, available varieties for specific needs, and compatible mixes.

To obtain a free copy of "Perennial Ryegrass For The USA," call 1-800-435-5296. Barenbrug will also send along a free copy of its new Forage Catalog free of charge.

Barenbrug's Perennial Ryegrass is a cool-season grass with a decided advantage over other varieties — it has a second growth spurt in the fall. It is also high in sugars and its cell walls are highly digestible, making it high in both protein and energy.

Perennial ryegrass is also very palatable, further increasing the energy intake of animals. These increased levels allow for improved milk production, animal weight gain, improved body condition scores, and better animal health.

A Barenbrug Perennial Ryegrass pasture can last as long as ten years, lowering the farmer's cost of production. Improved pastures are higher in production and easier to manage.

Barenbrug's new winter-hardy perennial originates from The Netherlands and has already proven to thrive for more than six years at numerous locations throughout the Midwest and Northeast.

Corn Growers Welcome Passage Of Crop Insurance Package

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Agricultural Risk Protection Act (H.R. 2559), passed by both houses of Congress, will provide welcome short-term relief for struggling farmers while taking important steps toward ensuring the future health of the farm economy.

"The National Corn Growers Association has long maintained that reform of the federal crop insurance program is vital to long-term economic stability in agriculture," said NCGA President Lynn Jensen of Lake Preston, S.D. "This bill addresses many of our concerns about the current program and will increase affordable risk management options for all farmers."

Jensen outlined some of the NCGA-supported crop insurance provisions of the bill.

"It increases premium subsidies at all levels of coverage and extends the subsidy to revenue products. It includes a subsidy structure that should encourage producers to consider higher levels of coverage. It provides relief for producers whose insurable yields have fallen due to unusual weather patterns. It encourages private development of new risk management products. And it strengthens provisions to reduce fraud, waste and abuse," he said.

Corn growers also welcomed the inclusion of approximately $7.1 billion in farm assistance funds. "The farm assistance portion of the bill is significant not only in that it provides $5.5 billion in direct payments to farmers this fiscal year, but also includes funding in the upcoming 2001 fiscal year for a number of forward-thinking initiatives that will improve farmers' profitability and self-sufficiency," Jensen said.

Among these initiatives is a $15 million program providing competitive grants for producers and processors of value-added agricultural commodities and products. "The move toward value-added agriculture is one of the keys to revitalizing rural communities and stabilizing farmers' incomes," Jensen said.

"Of course, ethanol is one of the most important value-added markets for corn," he said. "Thus, NCGA is particularly pleased that this bill includes $14 million for construction of a corn-based ethanol research pilot plant in Illinois. This pilot plant will enable researchers to improve the efficiency and cost-effectiveness of ethanol production, increasing corn grind and resulting in much wider use of renewable, environmentally friendly ethanol fuel."

In a related vein, the bill also authorizes an NCGA-backed initiative to promote innovative research on bio-based products and biofuels. Such products, made from renewable materials such as crops, trees and agricultural waste, provide a safe, sustainable alternative to replace petroleum-based fuels and chemicals. "This is another important endeavor that will not only boost farm income, but yield benefits for all of society," Jensen said.

In addition to these measures, the final crop insurance bill includes funding for a variety of other NCGA-supported programs in critical areas such as conservation and research.

Fold-Up Outlet Drop Standard On Feeder

MILFORD, Ind. — Chore-Time offers a unique fold-up outlet drop on its E-Z Start™ Chick Feeder.

When it is not in use, the new drop folds up compactly under the feeder line away from dust and dirt until it is needed again. As it is folded, the unit shuts off the feed flow and then locks in the closed position.

The E-Z Start Outlet Drop snaps together from four plastic pieces and attaches to the feeder line with a single bolt. Feeder line tubes are available from Chore-Time with holes prepunched for the chick feeder. The feeder can also be added to an existing feeding system by drilling additional feed openings in the feeder line.

Chore-Time's complete feeder consists of four plastic components: the new outlet drop, a feed cone, a feed cone starter sleeve, and a specially-shaped, heavy-duty feeder tray. The feed cone and sleeve interlock in one of three easy-to-select positions to pre-set the feed level for each feeder.

Chore-Time offers a unique fold-up outlet drop on its E-Z Start™ Chick Feeder.

Located in the center of the E-Z Start's feeder tray, the feed cone and sleeve are designed to place feed in a "pan-shaped" ring area where it will attract chicks. The border of the feeding ring helps conserve feed and helps train chicks to eat around a feeder's perimeter, preparing them for transition to the nearby pan feeders.

Groups Raise Fears, Set Meeting About New EPA Runoff Rule

creasing landowner costs, and making it harder to use land than to sell it, will drive more open, farm and forestland into development, the opposite of what Pennsylvania is striving to accomplish with ongoing preservation programs.

The groups contend that if the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) rule is enacted, EPA will regulate virtually "everywhere it rains."

In the rule, EPA reserves discretion to require permits under the National Pollution Discharge Elimination System program, currently administered by the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) in Pennsylvania. EPA says it will use its power in "limited circumstances" and "in a small number of cases." That means EPA would have unprecedented new federal discretion and authority, coalition members say.

For 30 years, forests, open land and agricultural land have been considered "non-point" sources of potential water pollution, as opposed to "point" or pipe sources. Each source has had a distinct approach, oversight and rules to improve and protect water quality. Under the new rule, EPA can redefine farm and forest activities as "point" sources, which would require landowners to go through a federal permitting process for certain activities.

With the rule, EPA sets total maximum daily loads or TMDLs. TMDLs calculate the maximum amount of pollution that a waterbody can receive to meet standards. A TMDL is the sum of all of the allowable loads of a single pollutant from all contributing sources, point and nonpoint. It contains reductions to meet water quality standards and allocated reductions among the sources in the watershed, according to the EPA.

Some Congressional legislation already has been introduced to halt or postpone the rule, which EPA plans to implement this summer.

Dairy Recipes From Readers

This week's selection of recipes contains more recipes sent in by readers for the June Dairy Recipe Drawing.

Recipes submissions will be printed throughout the month of June. The recipes are printed in no particular order, and does not mean that your entry has or has not been selected as a prize winner. Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Lori Connelly will draw the winning entries. A listing of the winners will be printed in the July 1 issue, and prizes will be mailed to the winners' home addresses at this time.

Even if you don't win a prize, we know from our mail, everyone enjoys reading the entries and trying some new recipes. We especially want to thank those who included pictures and a writeup about their lives. This makes our readers — and our staff - feel like they really know you.

So, get your scissors, and clip out the recipes that appeal to you. Or, perhaps, like many of our readers, you'll preserve the whole section to refer to again and again.

Make it with milk for the best taste ever!

GOLDEN CHEESE BROCCOLI CHOWDER

2 cups water
1 cup celery, chopped
1 cup carrots, chopped
½ cup onion, chopped

Cheese sauce:

½ cup butter
½ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt or to taste
¼ teaspoon pepper
4 cups milk
1 pound Velveeta cheese cut in cubes
4 cups grated cheddar cheese
2 cups ham, cubed

In large saucepan, combine water, celery, carrots, and onions. Bring to a boil, reduce heat. Simmer, covered for about 5 minutes or until tender. Add broccoli, cook until broccoli is tender about 4-5 minutes. Do not drain vegetables. To make cheese sauce, melt butter in large saucepan, blend in flour, satl, and pepper. Cook until mixture thickens. Stir in cheese and cook until melted, add the ham cubes. Combine cheese mixture with undrained vegetables, stir to blend. Yield: 12 servings.

This is a wonderful chowder and healthy also on a cool day.

Our daughter, Karen, wanted to do something special for her family (mother, sisters, and sister-in-laws) so she decided to make each of us a dress. We had our pictures taken at Charles Studio and went to Country Table for supper. Some people thought we were singers. It was a fun evening.

Confession time.

All that mayhem and violence constantly being paraded by us in the media has finally caught up with me.

I've acquired a gun.

This move was not without some self-searching. Gun-wise, I'm a fence-sitting, middle-of-the-roader, from a family deeply rooted in the hunting tradition, and sympathetic to the economic devastation overabundant wild life can wreak on farm crops. At the same time, I'm baffled why anyone would want their own arsenal or assault rifle, or why any person under the age of 21 should have their hands on a gun without a responsible, law-abiding adult hanging over their shoulder manning a trigger lock.

That said, I've acquired a gun. And taken my first shots. At a cat.

Whoa...whoa...whoa! Don't go there. Let me explain.

For months I've battled a couple of cats over bird feeder territorial rights on the back porch. The feeder is just a few steps from the window at the kitchen sink, so sited for our maximum observance of the chickadees, titmice, finches, doves, woodpeckers, jays, cardinals and assorted other feathered friends stopping by for daily snacks.

Didn't take long for a few of the smartest barn cat hunters to figure that a bird at the feeder was a lot easier to snag than two in any bush. The feline culprits have been deterred only slightly by my "fencing" the feeder with a couple of strips of rain gutter mesh and still spend considerable time sitting under the feeder just waiting for its sunflower seed customers to innocently alight and start snacking.

With the arrival of window-screen weather, it's easy to toss a cup of water out the window at the offending cat whenever I spy one lurking under the feeder. But that's messy, splashes all over the place and is hard to aim.

After one recent "bird bath" dousing of a cat, the proverbial light bulb went on. Gift of choice at a grandson's recent birthday party had been squirt guns; he now boasts an arsenal of about a dozen of them, ranging from tiny derringers to water-fueled AK-47s, most of them fashioned from neon-blaze-orange plastic.

So now, I've acquired a gun. A "squirt" gun.

This blue-plastic, pistol-sized, one-cup-calibre water gun I have out on loan is ideal for rousting those songbird stalkers. It's quiet, effective, cheap and harmless. Even a little challenging, to hit the cat and not the birds.

Seeing as how water guns are a summertime toy of choice for kids (and adults, from what I observed after the birthday party), it seems there could be numerous uses for them around the farm. If we can just figure out how to harness their capabilities.

• Watering plants, for instance. Kids and water seem to go seamlessly hand in hand. Let them think they're not supposed to squirt your houseplants summering outside on the porch and they'll keep them nice and moist through the most extreme heat and dry. How to handle their similar watering of the inside plants may be more of a problem.

• Washing the car. If your car is plastered with farm dust and muddy cat prints — as is mine at the moment — it may take one of those giant Super Soaker squirters to do the job. Those monster H20-weapons might also work for washing second and third floor windows outside, provided your kids — or you — have a practiced aim.

• Pre-soaking cows' teats prior to milking prep. Just turn the kids loose on the cows shortly before milking. Of course, we all have in our herds at least a couple of those mud-puppy-cows needing a water cannon rather than water pistol to come clean.

• Sign your work. the parent-lender of the pistol tells me that, if one is real steady-handed with her weapon, one can write her name in water on the side of a big canvas — like the barn door.

Sort of a perfect gun crime in which the evidence literally evaporates. Which, by the way, is what the cats have done from under the bird feeder since we took up guerrilla waterfare.

Warning to salesmen heading for our front door: This house is protected by a squirt-gun-armed farm wife.

Now if we could just figure out some way to use it on telemarketers.

Safety Issues Can Zap Unwary Microwave Oven Consumers

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The ease of operation and convenience of microwave ovens can lull unwary consumers into thinking the household appliances have no safety drawbacks, but a food engineer in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences says safety should always be an issue when cooking food.

"While the use of microwaves to cook food is totally safe for consumers, the way microwave ovens heat food can cause some safety problems, especially for children," says Swamy Anantheswaran, associate professor of food science.

Even heating a cup of water inside a microwave oven can be dangerous. Boiling water on a conventional stove allows steam to escape through the bubbling action as the water reaches a boil. By contrast, a microwave oven heats unevenly, which can create pockets of water that are much hotter than other parts of the water in the container.

"As the water heats unevenly, the built-up steam cannot escape through bubbling," Anantheswaran says. "When you add something to the water, such as sugar, instant coffee or a spoon, these superheated pockets of water can release very hot steam that can cause first-degree burns."

Adding ingredients such as sugar or instant coffee to the water before microwaving to promote bubbling or boiling.

Consumers never should use paper towels, plastic wraps or wax papers that are not clearly marked as microwave safe. Some microwave packages shouldn't be heated more than once in a microwave oven.

Fast-food products wrapped in metal foils can cause sparking, which can ignite the paper bags used to package a take-out order.

Consumers should be extremely careful about using any metal container or utensil. Sharply pointed tips, sharp edges and even the points and edges formed by crinkled aluminum foil can cause sparks. Some metal containers can be used in a microwave oven if they have smooth and rounded surfaces and edges.

"Pointed objects act as a lightning rod, attracting electrical energy," Anantheswaran explains." A working lightning rod dissipates electrical energy by grounding it. In a microwave, the electrical buildup will cause sparks because there is no way to ground it.

"China dishes with gilt bands of gold, silver or other metals also will arc in certain microwave ovens," Anantheswaran says. "Each microwave oven has its own unique electrical field and heating pattern. The best policy is never to put gilted china in a microwave oven."

Thick, viscous liquids such as soups or stews can heat unevenly as well. Products containing salt are particularly prone to uneven heating. "Salt absorbs massive amounts of microwave energy," he explains. "The soup at the center of the bowl may be cold or just right, yet a spoonful from the periphery of the bowl may scald or even burn your mouth."

Anantheswaran says soups and stews will heat more evenly if cooked using power levels set at 50 percent or 75 percent. Stirring the product between heating is recommended as well.

Consumers never should try to cook whole eggs in microwave ovens, because the high-in-fat yolk heats much faster than the rest of the egg. "The egg does not look particularly ominous in its shell, but once cracked, the yolk could scald or burn, he said. "You can find the perfect cooking time for eggs through experimentation but in my opinion, it's easier to boil the egg in water."

Consumers can cause plastics, ceramics, and even glass carousel plates to melt by not paying attention to heating times or activating buttons. Cooks may inadvertently punch in 22:00 instead of 2:20, or punch in 22 minutes and hit the "power" button instead of the "timer" button.

"The kitchen is a busy place, and you may not realize what is happening until it is too late," Anantheswaran says.

Family Living Focus

NANCY STEVENS
Montgomery Co. Extension

Summertime is Travel Time

This is the time of year that Americans put the kids in the car and take off for that family vacation. It's normal for children to become irritable and uncomfortable while sitting still in a confined areas for hours at a time.

Traveling with children can have its challenges, but a little bit of planning can help keep the journey as enjoyable as the destination. For very young passengers, the biggest concern is simply dry pants and a full stomach. Vinyl pads in car seats can become uncomfortable in hot weather so you may want to make or buy a fabric cover. Never try to tend to a crying baby while driving or take the baby out of the car seat while the car is moving.

Older children, from toddlers up through school age, are likely to verbalize their restlessness. Don't expect scenery to keep them occupied, they need more active diversions to keep their attention. On long trips restlessness can be minimized by stopping every two hours. Let the children out to stretch, though they will need close supervision if you stop at service stations or other sites where there are moving cars. If you are in an open area where the children can move around freely, you may want to play a short game of ball or tag to run off their excess energy.

Some families have found that starting out early in the morning, or even late at night allows children to sleep through several hours of the journey. If you start out before breakfast, you may want to give children a small snack of fruit juice or crackers before taking off.

Children are more pleasant travelers if you stop by 4:00 p.m. After that point, irritability sets in. Taking along food and drinks will cut down on stops and keep children satisfied. A container of ice water is a must. You might want to pack a supply of animal or graham crackers, fresh or dried fruit, pretzels, cookies or other favorites. You can keep the snacks in your possession and ration them out when hunger or boredom set in. Don't forget a wet washcloth or disposable wipes for sticky fingers.

Bring along the child's bed pillow or a familiar blanket so they can nap when they get tired. Let each child pack a bag of his or her favorite things to take along - small items, of course! You might try passing the items out one at a time. Bringing along a surprise package or toy will also help for those moments when you can tell the children have reached their traveling limit.

If you have space, you may want to make a play area in the car by placing a cardboard box on the seat beside the child. Take along a tape recorder with favorite nursery rhymes or songs to keep them occupied. Older children may want to make a talking travel log of the trip. Make sure the children are comfortable. Soft, loose clothing is the best choice and layers make it easier to control temperature preferences. It is wise to keep an extra change of clothes readily available for younger children and have sweaters or jackets nearby in case of changing weather.

For entertainment, the two to seven year-olds will enjoy crayons, paper, and blunt scissors. Small picture books, games, magnifying glasses, and magnets are also good choices. Older children will be occupied with playing cards, travel games like checkers, and crossword puzzles. A new book of mazes, word games or "Mad Libs" will keep their attention. A smooth writing surface can be provided with a clipboard or you may want to supply a magic slate.

There are several traditional travel games that have survived decades of traveling children. These include the alphabet game where children look for letters A through Z on signs. The "I-Spy" game is where one child comes up with one object inside the car and others have to guess what it is. Some children enjoy "20 Questions" where you again select an object and others ask "yes" or "no" questions in order to determine what that object is.

Of course, storytelling and singing are also great ways to pass the time. Whatever activities you decide to try, remember, if pandemonium breaks loose inside the car, let it go until you can pull safely off the highway. Only when you have brought the car to a complete stop should the driver turn his or her attention to the passengers.

No matter how unhappy the children become, never allow them to remove their seatbelts or get out of their carseats. If you follow some of these suggestions, your trip should be comfortable, safe and entertaining.

What Are Key Limes ?

Is "key lime pie" made from a special kind of lime, or is it named that because someone from the Florida Keys made up the recipe?

Key limes are actually a special type of lime that was introduced to the Florida Keys by Spanish and Portuguese explorers in the 16th century. The key lime is smaller than the Tahitian (or Persian) limes you're accustomed to seeing in the grocery store — it's much more round and just 1 to 2 inches in diameter. The skin is thinner and yellow at maturity. Its flesh is also more yellow in color than "regular" limes. And, its distinctive flavor is more acidic.

These days, there's not much key lime production anywhere in the United States. However, India, Egypt, the West Indies and Mexico are all major-producing countries. (The key lime is also known as the Mexican lime, although it originated in southern Asia.) Good luck finding this fruit anywhere outside of Florida, though. Gourmet food stores occasionally offer the fresh fruit. Key lime juice, which aficionados claim must be used for key lime pie, also can be difficult to find outside of Florida.

Luckily, either type of lime can be used in most recipes. Like other citrus fruits, limes are high in vitamin C, containing nearly 20 grams per fruit.

That's enough to give you 20 percent to 25 percent of the vitamin C you need for a day. But eating the tart fruit whole isn't often done. Rather, its juice is sometimes used as a salt substitute, to enhance the flavor of foods. They can also substitute for lemon juice, but they're more acidic than the yellow fruit — use two-thirds to three-quarters cup of lime juice for each cup of lemon juice in a recipe.

When juicing fresh limes, keep them at room temperature for an hour before squeezing. Then, roll the lime along the counter, applying gentle pressure with the palm of your hand, to get the most juice out of the flesh.

MCC Tristate Relief Sale Is June 16-17

McHENRY, Md. — The TriState Relief Sale to benefit Mennonite Central Committee's (MCC), worldwide mission efforts, is Friday and Saturday, June 16-17 at the Garrett County Fairground, McHenry, Md.

MCC seeks to demonstrate God's love by working among people suffering from poverty, conflict, oppression, and natural disaster. In 1920, MCC was started in response to hunger in the Ukraine.

"MCC goes in until the problem is solved," notes John Hepler, chairman of the TriState Relief Sale subcommittee that is directing activities.

The blockbuster affair will involve many aspects; however, the proceeds from all of them will be turned over to MCC after costs have been paid.

Excitement is mounting for the new Silent Auction being held from 4 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., Friday evening, just as the grounds are opened. The subcommittee planning the silent auction reports there will be no limit on how often a bidder can rebid. He must go higher than the previous bid.

At least 125 one-of-a-kind items will be displayed comfortably on tables in a large building. And writing down bids will be very convenient.

Among the items is a replica Joel J. Miller rocking chair whose original was built in 1868. Hand embroidered pillow cases, screech owl nesting house, and scads of items promise great enjoyment while helping MCC's cause.

At 7 p.m., Friday, the Cherry Glade Mennonite Praise and Worship Team will lead a musical service and Ken Sensenig from MCC's Akron office will participate.

Saturday at 6:30 a.m. the gates are open in time for breakfast of pancakes and sausage, followed at 8 a.m. by the opening of Market Place.

The Market Place is popular with hundreds of pre-priced goods for shoppers.

At 9 a.m. the quilt auction will begin and the children will go to special activities such as assembling health kits and counting coins in the Penny Power project. They will watch simulated MCC meat canning, do origami and sand art.

This year Penny Power will go to help millions of flooding victims in Bangladesh, to build homes, buy vegetable seeds and provide medicine. Penny Power has been underway for months in Allegheny Mennonite Conference churches.

The kids will be entitled to their own auction, too, and nobody who is over 14, can legally place a bid.

At 10:30 a.m. the Country Auction will begin. A sampling of merchandise includes Lenox and Simon Pearce glassware; Lynn Lais pottery, Gary Yoder wood sculptures, P. Buckley Moss limited edition prints, hand crafted oak chairs, adult and child hickory rockers, dinners at restaurants and weekend getaways at Laurelville Mennonite Church Center, Hidden Valley Resort, Deep Creek Lake, and Walnut Ridge B & B.

Also to be auctioned are, cherry quilt frame, quilt rack, new tools and hardware, raft rides and water sports; red oak table

John Hepler with an 1868 replica rocking chair. This is to be auctioned at the MCC Relief Auction in McHenry, Md.

40 by 80 inches; handwoven rugs, braided rug, bike rentals, bus trip certificates and much more.

One unique contribution is the model 1920 Fordson tractor MCC used in the Ukraine.

Foods will dominate the grounds, from chicken barbecue meals to homemade ice creams, pastries, and numerous popular snacks and beverages.

The Garrett County Fairgrounds is located 13 miles south of Interstate 68, Exit 14A, taking Route 219 S.

Three gals keep an eye on activity among Joan Stump's goat herd.

It takes only five minutes for Henry Bailey to milk a goat by hand.

Sindi Michalik, Henry Bailey, and Joan Stump want people to know that goats produce milk too. In fact, Bailey said that worldwide, goats provide more milk than cows, and that 85 percent of the world's population has never tasted cows milk.

Dairy Goats Give Milk Too

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

TELFORD (Montgomery Co.) — The mischievous goat is notoriously known for its clever antics and unorthodox eating fare, but 20 members of the Delaware Valley Milk Goat Association (DVMGA) want people to know that goats contribute the best milk available.

"Goats are dairy animals, too," said Henry Bailey.

While most people living in the U.S. think cows are milk's source, Bailey points out that 85 percent of the world has never had cows' milk.

Officers of DVMGA Joan Stump, Henry Bailey, and Cindy Michalik enthusiastically promote goat breeds and goat dairy products. Some people complain that mothers and grandmothers notoriously brag about their children and grandchildren, but Stump, Bailey, and Michalik shamelessly interject "goat talk" into conversations with family, friends, and acquaintances.

"They're my babies," Stump said as she showed off her Alpine herd.

"How are my gals?" she calls to three curious Alpines peeping through the windows of the shed erected on the property.

Like many others in the goat circuit, Michalik's and Stump's interest in goats evolved. First, Michalik purchased a goat as a companion for her daughter's horse. But the goat soon nuzzled her way into the forefront of Michalik's interests and she now owns about 20 head of Alpine and LaManche breeds. Even Michalik's husband, Archie, helps with the daily milking.

Stump credits her husband Harold for getting her interested in goats. She said, "My childhood memories of them were not good, but when my husband stuck a two-week-old baby in my arms, I was hooked."

Since then, Stump does all the daily care required and her husband takes care of the heavy work.

Goats, the owners believe, are the answer for the person who has only a little land. In fact, Stump raises 19 Alpines on only one acre of land. The Stump's garage serves as a nursery and maternity pens, and a few sheds have been erected for the does, bucks, and yearlings.

"You don't need any more space for a goat than you do for a German Shepherd, and goats give you so much more in return — milk, milk products, and the best fertilizer ever," she said.

"It's a manageable animal and reasonable to own," Bailey said. As 4-H leader Silver Pals Goat Club, he believes goats make the perfect project for 4-H'ers. His daughter, Stephanie, has raised goats for a 4-H project for six years. She will be heading off to college and when she does, Bailey plans to continue the herd. His wife, Carole, is involved in the 4-H Seeing Eye Club.

"Goats are hardy and easier to handle than sheep. In pasture, they browse bushes and weeds not eaten by sheep. Goats are not prone to contract any major illnesses, although they can contact Johnes' disease if exposed when young or for a long time," Stump said.

On the Stump property, the does, bucks, yearlings, and baby goats are kept in separate pens. This offers more control in feeding. Although Stump has a homebred buck, she also uses AI services to breed the does in the fall.

Most births are without complications, but Stump likes to keep an eye on progress. To keep track, a baby monitor is placed in the maternity pen. Pawing and heavy breathing are tell-tale signs of labor that is easily picked up by the monitor.

Typically, newborn goats are taken from their mothers to be bottlefed.

"This ensures udder health because babies are brutal," Stump said.

The milk is pasteurized to keep from passing disease to the newborns.

Goat care includes clipping toe nails every six weeks. If goats are pastured in rocky areas, toe nail trimming happens naturally, but when raised on soft bedding, nails grow more rapidly and must be trimmed more often.

Although all Bailey, Stump, and Michalik own milk goats, they are not licensed to sell goat milk. Each family makes lots of ice cream, cheese, other cooking dishes, and even make their own soap. The excess milk goes to pigs, to supplement Jersey calves, and other nourishing projects.

People call and ask for truckloads of goat manure. "It's great in the garden — makes plants grow like nobody's business," Bailey said.

Stump agrees. She said she had one butternut squash plant that rooted itself on top of a manure pile produced 68 squash.

"During last year's drought, ground rich with goat manure remained moist," Bailey said.

Organized in 1932, DVMGA assists goat keepers, large and small, in their efforts to improve milk production, breeding, and herd health.

"We consider this (DVMGA) a self-service club. We teach care and hold seminars on kidding, birthing, management practices, hoof and udder care, clipping, showmanship and fitting," Stump said.

Another perk with DVMGA membership is breeding services.

Newcomers benefit from the experiences of other club members. One of the most pressing needs is help in milking goats.

Michalik uses a milking machine converted from one used on a cow. Stump milks by hand. It takes five minutes to milk a goat by hand. When milking is finished, goats are rewarded with a cookie treat.

"Goats will do anything for cookies. They love them," Stump said of the reward system.

"It is important for milk to be handled properly for taste and purity. I never worry what's in my milk, I control it," Stump said.

Goats' milk is naturally homogenized and is most like mother's milk. People with milk allergies usually tolerate goats milk.

DVMGA is involved in every aspect of the goat industry. It even prints a newsletter edited by Stump. The "Newscaper" keeps members up-to-date on the latest goat-related information and legislation that affects the goat industry.

One of the club's primary goals is to have a rabies vaccine approved within a year. Stump said, the goat industry does not have a large enough lobby to influence pharmaceutical companies to develop one. Cornell is conducting testing on close herds, but needs money for the testing. The club encourages goat members to donate the price of a bag of feed to the program. In addition, an online auction raises money to support the Rabies Goat Vaccine Test Program at Cornell University, N.Y. Items of many kinds have been donated to the auction, including live breedings, semen, buck and doe kids, cheeses, soaps, books, collectibles, and crafts. To date $7,000 has been raised. The goal is $10,000. Check out the online auction at www.khimaira-farm.com.

From October through May, DVMGA meetings are held the first Sunday of each month, 1:30 p.m. at the Indian Valley Library, Telford. Members bring homemade cheese and other specialities made with goat's milk. Those interested in attending meetings or desiring more information, write to Stump at 750 Allentown Rd., Telford, PA 18969 or call (215) 723-5415.

The wholesome nutrition of wheat has long been recognized in the wheat flour products we enjoy each day. That same goodness remains complete and intact when the wheat kernel is cooked as a grain and served as cereal, or in side dishes, main dishes, salads, soups and desserts. Wheat kernels or berries are exceptionally easy to prepare since they do not become sticky or gummy. Their flavor is rich and nut-like and with a high fiber content, they are very satisfying.

When comparisons are made between different grains, wheat maintains a high status. Wheat is low in fat, rich in slow-burning carbohydrates, vegetable protein, essential B-vitamins, and trace minerals. All play a vital role in digestion, an even energy supply, and utilization of fats, carbohydrates and other nutrients in the body's system.

Let's take a look at some of the types of wheat products.

Wheat berry is the whole kernel of wheat, unpolished and not heat treated. The berries or kernels can be cooked whole for side or main dishes, cracked for cereals and breads, sprouted, or ground for whole wheat flour.

Bulgur wheat is a pre-cooked wheat product made from whole kernel wheat commercially.

Cracked wheat is coarsely ground unpolished wheat kernels. It can be made in a blender or home mill.

Cooking Whole Kernel Wheat: Note — Use only commercially sold wheat berries or untreated wheat, clean from the combine.

Soaking wheat overnight in the water it is to be cooked in, cuts cooking time in half in all the following methods.

Salt may be used if desired, ¼ to ½ teaspoon salt per cup of wheat.

Stove Top

Whole berries: 1 cup wheat to 3 cups water. Simmer covered 1 hour to 30 minutes if pre-soaked. Yields: 2 ½ cups wheat.

Cracked wheat: 1 cup cracked wheat to 2 ½ cups boiling water. Cover and simmer 15 to 20 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes. Yields: 2 ⅔ cups

Crock Pot

2 cups wheat berries
4 cups water

Place wheat and water in crock pot. Cover and cook on low about 8 hours. Stir once during the first hour of cooking. Refrigerate and reheat just before serving or use in bread and casserole recipes. Yields: 5 cups

Oven-cooked

1 cup wheat berries
2 cups water

Preheat oven to 300°F. Boil in heavy saucepan five minutes. Remove from heat, cover and place in oven. Turn off oven heat. Leave undisturbed approximately six hours. Yields: 3 cups

Cooking a large amount of wheat at one time and freezing the cooked berries in small portions is a real time and energy saver. After cooking, just drain the cooked berries well and place ½ cup to 1 cup portions in freezer containers. Keep up to three months. Quickly thaw kernels by running hot tap water over them in a colander.

Uses for the cooked wheat berries are as varied as your imagination allows. They can easily be substituted, once pre-soaked, for bulgur in most recipes or used in place of cooked rice in other recipes. When combined with other proteins such as meats, milk, nuts, eggs or cheese, the combination is a high protein dish or meal. Try this tasty side dish using wheat berries.

Wheat-Nut Pilaf

Excellent with chicken or beef!

1 cup pre-soaked wheat berries
2 medium carrots, shredded
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cups beef or chicken broth or bouillon
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped walnuts, pecans or almonds

In large ovenproof skillet or flameproof casserole, saute berries in butter about five minutes to brown lightly, stirring occasionally. Stir in broth, carrots, and salt; bring to boil. Cover and bake in 350°F oven for 25 minutes or until broth is absorbed, stirring occasionally. Stir in choice of nuts. Yields: 4 servings.

John Deere Car To Display FFA Emblem

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — For the first time since 1997, the No. 97 John Deere Winston Cup race car had a new look on May 28. The car featured the FFA emblem on its hood while racing in the Coca Cola 600 at Lowe's Motor Speedway.

"We are developing a synergy between FFA members, John Deere dealers, and NASCAR fans as we place the FFA emblem on the hood of the No. 97 John Deere NASCAR," said R.W. "Bud" Porter, 2000 National FFA Foundation Sponsors' Board chairman and retired senior vice president, North American Agricultural Marketing, Deere & Company.

John Deere is the longest-standing corporate sponsor of the National FFA Foundation, supporting FFA initiatives for 57 years of the organization's 72-year history. Placement of the FFA emblem on the hood of the No. 97 John Deere Winston cup race car is included in Phase I of an enhanced partnership between John Deere and FFA.

Far Infrared Rays (FIR) Health Builder

Within the magnetic spectrum, while some rays, such as light, can be seen by the unaided human eye, most are totally invisible to us. Far Infrared Rays (FIR) are well beyond the ability of the naked eye to see FIR is capable of penetrating deep into the human body It can gently and delightfully elevate the body's temperature When it does so, it helps to expand capillaries which stimulates blood circulation. This increases the body's energy reserve, and accelerates the metabolic exchange between blood and body tissue. That's not all! FIR can actually increase the body tissue's regenerative ability. It also reduces abnormalities in nervous system and helps the autonomous system function properly.

QUESTION — It's canning season, writes C. Alleman, Hummelstown. She wants recipes for Vidalia onion relish, pepper cabbage, tomato salsa, and pickled vegetables. Any helpful hints will be appreciated by Carol, who writes that she grabs the paper to read "Cook's Corner," first. She loves cooking, collects cookbooks and recipes and uses them.

QUESTION — Pat Schreffler, Pitman, would like easy and good rice pudding recipes. (Note to Pat: Send your complete address to receive the news clipping information you had requested).

QUESTION — Shirley Miller, Nazareth, would like to find a recipe or booklet about potato flour.

Any readers have a copy to send?

QUESTION — Herman Bean, Easton, writes that he is 78 years old. He remembers his grandmother made molasses cookies when he was a small boy. His mother still made them at 95 years of age but died 10 years ago and took the recipe with her. The dough was cut with flower or boy and girl-shaped cookie cutters. When baked, the cookies were about an inch thick, 4-inches high, and 2- or 3-inches wide. They were sort of a grayish color, soft, and had to be put into a can for a couple of days before eating. Bean said, he believes the cookies are a "Dutch favorite."

QUESTION — A reader from Dauphin would like a recipe for society pickles, which she heard stay crunchy after they are canned.

QUESTION — Steven Skramko, Richfield Springs, N.Y., would like a recipe to make Shoe Top cookies, which look like leather used for repairing shoes. He writes the recipe is from 60 years ago.

She requested recipes for milk-based recipes other than puddings, ice cream, cheese, butter, and milk soap. Non-dessert recipes would be most appreciated. # Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

June is the month for roses. Ours are doing fine as my husband ordered six new bushes. He planted two in the old bed to replace some that died and extended another bed for the other four.

There are flowers and more flowers around here just now. Many are inside on tables. The three colors of peonies are mixed with baby breath in one vase. A potted Gerbera daisy sits on a windowsill and a florist's bouquet of pink and white carnations is on the coffee table.

This last item was the centerpiece at my birthday party. Relatives and friends got together on a rainy day to wish me well. To top off the flower theme, I was given a gift by my children of a special potted plant to be delivered each month for a year.

My husband had to cancel a planned trip to visit his brother in a Veteran's Home last week. Instead, we took his boat to Blue Marsh in Berks County. Sometimes he has trouble getting me out of bed early enough to suit him. So, this time I was ready at 4 a.m., but he said that was too early as it was quite foggy.

We were the first boat at the dock and we transferred our poles, bait, life preserves, net, food, tackle boxes, etc. from the car to the boat. Our electric motor did a good job despite the choppy water due to a stiff breeze. In fact we hunted a cove to fish in and to eat the lunch that I packed the night before.

The banks of the lake are overgrown with trees and brush. Wild grape vines, poison ivy, and honeysuckle climb over willow and mulberry trees. One time I stupidly managed to snag some brush with my line and twice I ask Allen to get the net as I caught two nice-sized fish. He was not lucky enough to get any this time. But, there is always next time.

What Is Neufchatel Cheese?

If Neufchatel cheese was invented today, we'd probably know it simply as "low-fat cream cheese." But it was developed before the low-fat craze and before regulators changed the rules for how manufacturers could name certain foods. (Remember when low-fat ice cream was called "ice milk"?)

Since this cream-cheese substitute contained less than 33 percent milkfat and more than 55 percent moisture — two of the markers for the "standard of identity" for cream cheese — manufacturers couldn't put "cream cheese" on its label. The product was, however, similar to a French product developed in the town of Neufchatel (the "f" is silent and the "ch" is soft, pronounced "sh"), in northern Normandy. The French version varies widely in fat content, but still, American companies adopted that name for their lower-fat rendition of the product.

Neufchatel cheese contains about 23 percent milk fat and 62 percent moisture. Thanks to the lower fat content, one ounce — about two tablespoons — contains about 75 calories, compared with nearly 100 calories in regular cream cheese.

Today, you can find fat-free varieties of cream cheese, too, made from skim milk. Although Neufchatel substitutes easily for regular cream cheese in most recipes, manufacturers don't recommend the fat-free cream cheese for baking.

Whipped cream cheese also is available. Teaspoon for teaspoon, it contains fewer calories, because air has been whipped into the cheese to make it spread more easily. Because of that, it doesn't work as a good recipe substitute for regular brick cream cheese, either.

Still another kind of cream cheese, "soft" cream cheese, is made by replacing some of the cream cheese curd with regular cream. Again, because its consistency is markedly different than regular cream cheese and Neufchatel cream cheese, it doesn't make a good substitute for those products in recipes.

the Signature of FFA Success

West Snyder FFA

Derek Fetterolf, son of Ken and Joan Fetterolf of Beavertown was recently awarded a $500 scholarship to the Penn State Conservation Leadership School by the Snyder County Conservation District. Derek, a West Snyder FFA member, was the only FFA member in Snyder County to receive this scholarship this year.

The Penn State Conservation Leadership School is held at the University's Stone Valley Recreation Area near State College. Students between the ages of 15 and 18 learn about the environment and conservation during a two-week program that emphasizes field-based, hands-on learning, group problem solving, and leadership.

The Stone Valley Recreation Area is more than 7,000 acres of forest, fields, wetlands, and streams where learning about the environment goes hand-in-hand with having fun and meeting new friends.

The summer curriculum is packed with lessons in ecology, watershed and forest management, soil analysis, the study of caves, citizen action, land-use planning, alternative energy supplies, environmental risk assessment, and much more. During their stay at Stone Valley, students will work in teams of ten with a resident instructor.

Derek has selected to attend the second session of the Conservation Leadership School, which will be held from July 9 to July 22, 2000.

Kites were given to every kid at the festival. The windmills, in the background, are 200 feet high.

Corey Feaster, 5, shows a windmill painted on his hand.

Hooray For The Wind

GAY BROWN LEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

GARRETT (Somerset Co.) — Wind. You can't see it, but, you can feel it. You can hear it.

Wind is a kid's thing. It is everybody's thing.

Wind can be scary. It can put us to sleep at night.

Wind can lift a kite high to the sky. Balloons, too.

Wind housecleans the trees in springtime.

Wind brings relief to hot, sweltering, summer days.

Wind moves sailboats across the water. It makes waves.

Wind blows off your hat and makes you chase it.

Wind drops dead branches from trees (for bonfires and weenie roasts).

Wind sends fall leaves topsy turvy in autumn.

Wind arranges snowdrifts for winter fun.

Wind turns windmills.

Wind produces electricity.

Wind, wind, wind.

Hooray for the wind.

Speaking of wind, eight windmills were built in Somerset County a few weeks ago, near a small town called Garrett. The group of windmills is called Green Mountain Wind Farm. They were built to produce electricity.

On top of each windmill long blades rotate in a huge circle. As the blades spin, electricity is made.

Then, people buy the electricity produced by the wind.

With the electricity they buy, people turn on lights, heat their homes in winter and cool them in summer.

They also operate factories that manufacture cars, trucks, clothes and other items.

Because people buy electricity, water is pumped into their homes to run out of faucets at sinks and bathtubs. And toilets are flushed.

Also, food can be cooked on stoves and cooled in refrigerators and freezers.

Computers, televisions, washing machines and machines that milk cows, use electricity. So do electronic scoreboards at ballgames.

Everyday, kids and grownups use electricity to work and play.

Wind is "Renewable" energy. Wind, you know, goes by and comes back again. It always seems to return. That makes it renewable.

GreenMountain.com and American National Wind Power are companies that own the Green Mountain Wind Farm. To build the windmills, they first asked permission from the owners of the ground they wanted to use for the project. The landowners were brothers, Donald Decker and Robert Decker.

The Decker men said "Yes," because they were excited about windmills. Nobody in Somerset County had ever had windmill farm with gigantic towers like these would be.

After they got permission to go ahead, the companies hired all kinds of people with many skills to develop the Green Mountain Wind Farm. Even workers on the other side of the Atlantic Ocean. Building a wind farm seemed like a very technical, or complicated, project.

Kids like Lacey Decker, 12, are learning that wind can produce electricity without polluting the environment. Lacey lives at the wind farm. In May 2000, when the Green Mountain people held the Wind Farm Festival, Lacey Decker got to throw the switch to start up a windmill. Boy, did she ever get cool gifts like posters and a jacket.

Jessica Minerd, Kristen Ritenour, and Amy Ritenour from Connellsville, were all over the place trying to fly their neat kites. Gosh, it was windy.

Little Corey Feaster from Short Gap, W.Va., grinned all over when a lady painted a windmill on his hand.

Other kids tossed rings at the "Ring-a-Renewable" peg game. Different colored pegs represented energy sources that produces electricity. Lots of black pegs stood for coal. Yellow ones were for nuclear, blue were natural gas, brown were for oil and purple were hydroelectric. Last, three green pegs for renewables.

The kids learned that pollution makes a big drop when electric power is produced by a renewable source like wind.

Kids can bring their parents and friends to see the windmills at work. Just stop by a small park that you can't miss on Schrock Road and read all stuff printed on the big plaques.

Pennsylvania Turnpike, Exit 10, Route 219 S. to Garrett, or visit www.greenmountain. com on the internet.

Hooray for the wind!

Lacey Decker lives on the land where eight windmills were built near Garrett, Somerset County. She got cool presents for throwing a switch to start up a windmill.

High-Value Marketing Meeting June 17

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Producers and beginning farmers who would like to learn about establishing high-value crops, subscription marketing, and bringing the next generation into their farm business are invited to attend a Pennsylvania Farm Link-sponsored meeting at Pheasant Hill Farm in Emmaus June 17 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

The meeting will take place at the farm and include a presentation by owners, George and Melanie DeVault, on how they got started in farming, their farm's products, and their marketing plan and strategy.

This year the DeVault's are providing 75 families with fresh vegetables through their subscription service and 25 families with subscription cut flowers. Don Devault, their son, will discuss his work in the hoop house and greenhouse and how he has expanded his production in these facilities to generate year round production and income. They will talk about how family communications affect the success of an intergenerational farm business.

Information on marketing trends and tips for developing subscription and/or community supported agriculture markets will be included in the meeting. To complete the morning, Farm Link will offer information on their services and a preview of upcoming activities and events.

To get to Pheasant Hill Farm from the west, take Rt. 100 and 29 south from the Shimerville light to Main Road West. Bear to the right at the "Y" and go straight until you come to Main Road East. The DeVault's are four-tenths of a mile ahead on the right, directly opposite a large stone barn. From the east near Lanark, travel on Vera Cruz Road for 4.7 miles until you reach Main Road East and travel on that for about a half mile.

Contact Pennsylvania Farm Link at 717-664-7077 by June 16 to let them know of your planned attendance to this free meeting and for additional information on other marketing events.

Farm Link is sponsoring a series of marketing meetings to assist beginning farmers and others looking for marketing opportunities.

Thomas The Tank Engine Rides To Railroad Museums

(NAPS)—All aboard! A beloved children's storybook train is riding the rails to visit railway museums across the country.

Thomas the Tank Engine, star of the children's series, Storytime With Thomas, and the upcoming feature film, Thomas and the Magic Railroad, will be generating sparks of excitement and steam in a program called a Day Out With Thomas.

For children and grown-ups, Day Out With Thomas events offer a chance to visit the magical world of Thomas & Friends™, plus a chance to experience the fun and excitement of steam engines and railroading

The railway museum at which each event is based becomes an extension of Thomas' home, the mythical Island of Sodor. Visitors play games, watch videos, interact with unique exhibits and enjoy Thomas-themed entertainment overseen by Thomas' firm but kindly boss, Sir Topham Hatt.

The program began with a few small events in the United Kingdom in 1990 These events were so enthusiastically received that by 1999, there were 110 UK events with more than 440,000 visitors.

A similar program began in the U.S. in December of 1996 at the National Railroad Museum in Green Bay, WI. Last year, the U.S. 26-event tour introduced more than 275,000 fans to Thomas and his friends.

The Britt Allcroft Company has one licensed "Thomas" replica engine, an actual 55-ton steam engine, operated by the Strasburg Rail Road in Strasburg, PA The museum hires out their licensed replica for tourist railroads and museums across the country This year, Thomas the Tank Engine will make stops at

Keep Drinking Your Milk

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Sarah Krall knows what's it like to promote milk. As last year's dairy maid for Lebanon County, she's touted milk's goodness at schools, malls, and fairs. She's handled curious questions from children and misinformed comments from adults. Through it all, Sarah said, "I liked it so much, I wanted to come back and do it again."

She has that chance. But this time, there is one big difference. Sarah will wear the dairy princess crown for the county.

The 16-year-old captured the crown after competing at the county's annual pageant conducted at the Lebanon County Career & Technology Center, June 3.

Named alternate dairy princess is Amanda Heffelfinger.

Both contestants performed a prepared skit and responded to interview and impromptu questioning.

For her prepared skit, Sarah portrayed a younger girl in search of her brother who stole a basket packed for a picnic. Although she didn't find her brother, she did find the leftover evidence of a lunch rich in dairy products. Sarah consoled herself by repeating her mother's words as she picked up empty milk cartons, and cheese sandwich wrappers by reminding herself that at least her brother was getting good nutrition. Her words included such advice as "Mamma says chocolate milk is good for you. It has all the good qualities of milk, and the extra sugar is no where near that of soft drinks that contain no nutrients."

Sarah remained at ease for the impromptu question asked by David Lentz: "What advice would you give to a younger brother and sister when faced with peer pressure?"

"Be yourself. Don't be swayed by pressure from your friends or by what media and advertising says you should do. Remain true to yourself," she said.

Sarah is the daughter of Rick and Linda Krall, Lebanon. Her father is a representative for Select Sires. Sarah's gets plenty of experience in farm duties by helping with milking on her uncle's dairy farm. She also has nine dairy animals of her own, which she shows in local competitions.

A junior at Cedar Crest High School, Sarah is involved in Odyssey of the Mind, Students for Christ, chorus, and FFA — her favorite class. She is also a member of the 4-H Friends, Cedar Crest 4-H Dairy Club, and her church youth group.

College and vet school are in Sarah's plans. But before that, Sarah will compete for the state dairy princess crown in September.

Alternate Dairy Princess Amanda Heffelfinger is the 17-year-old daughter of Charles and Audrey Heffelfinger, who own 97 acres called Heff-Acres.

A senior at Cedar Crest High School, Amanda is involved in chorus, orchestra, and FFA. She works part time for Stony Ridge Garden Center. But it was Amanda's career aspirations that intrigued the audience. Amanda wants to be a stormchaser. She explained that she turned her former fear of storms into a love of watching them. Recently she was on the house roof installing a weather station when a gust of wind blew her off. Undaunted, Amanda continues to explore storms' fury.

Storms are not her only interest. Amanda plans to attend Millersville University to study urology.

In her prepared skit, Amanda imitated a waitress who cleans up a table that is loaded with uneaten food. Amanda laments about all the nutrition that is missed from unconsumed milk, cheese sandwiches, and other leftovers.

Assisting in promotion are Dairy Maid Jessica Bross and Lil'l Miss Janelle Mendoff.

Jessica is the 13-year-old daughter of Dennis and Patricia Bross, Myerstown. Jessica owns dairy cattle and her parents are dairy farmers. An eighth-grader at New Covenant Christian School, Jessica is involved in band, plays, and track.

She is a member of NorLebCo 4-H Dairy Club and the Extra Special Puppy Club. At her church, she is active in choir and in the ministry team.

Janelle is the .5-year-old daughter of Steven and Melissa Mendoff, Lebanon. Although she doesn't live on a farm, she enjoys visiting her cousin who does.

Somerset Dairy Princess 2000 Cracks Case Of Project Milk

Somerset County Dairy Princess 2000, Lacey Coleman,right, is shown with alternate Rebekah Fox.

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — "Project Milk" found 16-year-old Lacey Coleman examining all the clues she found on the farm to crack the mystery case. Once on the scent, however, each clue lead to another and before you knew it the agent had found all the answers.

On May 27, Lacey Coleman captured the title of Somerset County Dairy Princess 2000. The daughter of Phillip and LeeAnn Coleman, Berlin, was among four contestants in the 34th Annual Somerset County Dairy Princess Pageant, held at Berlin-Brothersvalley High School.

In evening gowns for their promenade, the young women also presented dairy skits and underwent questioning in the on-stage interviews by master of ceremonies, state representative, Robert Bastian.

Coleman leads the Somerset County Holstein Club as its president; shows and fits her own eight dairy cattle; is a 10-year member of the Milksquirts 4-H Club, and chapter sweetheart of the Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA.

Her travels have included a 2000 4-H Exchange Trip delegate to Mendocino County, California, and delegate to the 2000 National Rural Electric Youth Tour to Washington, D.C. She participates in many more activities in school and church.

Coleman is the only daughter of four children. Her brothers are Matthew, 21; Adam, 18 and Wade, 11.

The alternate dairy princess, Rebekah Fox, 16, is Brad and Melissa Fox's daughter. She was the Miss Congeniality recipient. The Fox family resides near Brotherton.

Cristie Weaver, 16, and Jennifer Stahl, 17, rounded out the contestant roster. Weaver's parents, Carl and Brenda Weaver are from Windber. Stahl's parents, Richard H. and E. Ellen Stahl are from Somerset.

Judges for the affair, which was followed by an ice cream social, were Karen Soliday, Johnstown; Mary Beth Lieb, Cambria County and John McElvaine, Westmoreland County.

Almost, but not quite everyone, was a door prize winner. Dairy maids Jessica Rose, Daniela Shriner, Elizabeth Ann Thomas, Joy Tressler, and Bethany Weimer hand-delivered them to recipients seated in the auditorium.

Little Miss participants were Megan Brown, Malorie Coddington, Keri Friedline, Lori Horning, Jennifer Martin, Katelin Michael, Kristen Paul, Janna Shober. Their escorts were Lucas Calvert, Drew Cotter, Tucker Cotter, Justin Ferko, Alex Fox, Levi Friedline and Isaac Plummer.

Angie Shober, chairperson of the Somerset County Dairy Promotion Committee. Assisting are Jodi Flick, Amy Paul, Jenny Plummer, Christine Singo, Barbara Brant, Nina Ferko, Gloria Kaufman, Sylvia Mast, Helen Mishler, Dorothy Naugle and Sue Tressler.

The new dairy princess, who succeeds the retiring Susanna Thomas of Boswell, received $200 from the Allied Milk Producers' Cooperative, Inc. In April 2001, Allied will give a second installment of $300 if the princess, at that time, has met the obligations and requirements of dairy promotion.

Retiring Somerset Dairy Princess Not Inclined To Waste Time

BOSWELL (Somerset Co.) — Susanna Thomas, who is retiring on June 30 as the 1999 Somerset County Dairy Princess, is not inclined to waste her time.

The 17-year-old, for instance, in the middle of the day, dashes home from the Greater Johnstown Career and Technology Center to meet an interviewer who, obviously is late.

Instead of impatience, the industrious young woman hastily begins chopping the carrots needed for a dish on the family dinner menu that evening.

In the last 12 months, she has had similar experiences making every minute count. Her parents, Mark and Doris Thomas, and sister, Elizabeth, 15, are supportive.

Maintaining responsibilities on the 154-acre Bowling Green Farm, where Susanna tends her own small Jersey herd and beef cattle, school, and being the dairy princess is a demanding commitment.

She also works at the North Fork Golf and Country Club in the capacity of a cook.

Susanna says it was the right time for her to be the dairy princess. As a junior, studying horticulture, floriculture and hydroponics, she found the educational work load manageable.

"This is a good age to be interested and relate to little kids," she observed. "When you are older, you are doing your own thing."

So, happily, Susanna is embracing the future where her concentration as a senior can be more self-focused. "My senior year is my year," she firmly announced.

Her former reserve was effectively banished through meeting many new people. "I was sort of shy and backward," she acknowledged, "but my people skills have grown immensely. My knowledge of the dairy industry has grown even more," she said, assessing herself.

It was equally notable to the dairy princess that her experiences were also helping others to grow and change.

An inner-city child, for instance, knew nothing about cows, milk or dairy products. So when Susanna presented the news that a cow can make 50-60 glasses of milk in a day, because she drinks the equivalent of a bathtub filled with water, eats hay, corn and other feed, the child was lost. He was unable to grasp beyond what his family found in a grocery store. Broadening his young mind was a moving exercise for the princess.

The lion's share of promotions found her at schools, supermarkets, malls, special events, and meetings. The spontaneity of children made school promos a favorite with Susanna.

Most Somerset County kids have the basic understanding of farming, yet, when it came to the cows themselves, they were eager to hear more from Susanna.

Enlightening them about the cow breeds, for instance, and the cow's amazing, compartmentalized stomach. They were awed at the process of bovine digestion.

"When a cow eats food, she might chew a bit and swallow then bring it up later to finish chewing," she reported.

Children love to learn new things. They can more readily accept that milk is good for you no matter how old you are. Adults, of course, are harder to convince that drinking milk and eating dairy products is, by far, the best preventer of osteoporosis.

"My most difficult challenge was talking to older people who were set in their ways," she said.

"Calcium is good for hair, skin, eyesight, heartbeat and helps muscles contract and relax. It is good for a lot of things," Susanna said.

The promoter stated that Vitamin D in milk is what helps bones absorb calcium, yet there are individuals who believe all they need to prevent osteoporosis are calcium pills.

She anticipates climbing back in the tractor driver's seat and doing the field work she enjoys so much. In some ways the old routine will feel good again. Still, not for anything would Susanna exchange the wonderful experiences and unique growth emerging from the dairy princess responsibilities.

Susanna Thomas has always worked with cows, but learned a lot of new facts as Somerset County Dairy Princess.

Kutztown Festival Makes Pennsylvania-Dutch Folklife Into Fun

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — The annual Kutztown "Pennsylvania-German" Festival, July 1-9, on the Kutztown Fairgrounds, is a grass roots community event. It celebrates Pennsylvania-Dutch folklife particular to the region's "plain and fancy" 17th and 18th century settlers, predominantly of German and Swiss ancestry. It features the quilts, fine folk art, traditional American crafts, foods, folklore, farming, and lifestyle of Pennsylvania-Dutch culture.

More than 1,000 locally, hand-made quilts are displayed for sale in the Quilt Barn throughout the Festival — one of the largest quilt shows and sales of its kind in the country. On opening day 24 prize-winning quilts in the categories of pieced patch, all quilted, applique and combination designs will be auctioned at noon. The auction attracts bidders from around the U.S. and the world. "Sold" prize quilts are displayed after the sale in the Quilt Barn throughout the Festival; so, those who don't attend the auction can still see these extraordinary prize quilts. Everyone can try a hand at quilting on the Festival Quilt. Area quilters teach and conduct daily demonstrations in the Quilt Barn.

The second annual auction of limited edition folk art prior to the quilt auction will include limited editions 8 x 12-inch hand-drawn and painted fraktur in a handcrafted frame by Harry Smith. A hex sign collaboration is offered by renowned hex artist Johnny Claypoole and son, Eric. Carol Heppe's 24 inch handsewn miniature quilt, patterned after those made by young girls in earlier centuries, is in a feather painted wooden frame.

Two-hundred juried folk artists and traditional American craftsmen demonstrate and sell their works. Many wear period costumes. This is a rare occasion to see 200 of America's finest folk artists at one time.

Always fascinating are the Amish wedding, Mennonite Meeting House services and hymn sings. A historic area church presents Pennsylvania-Dutch dialect services, celebrates Harvest Home, and serves strawberries and ice cream at a Strawberry Festival next to the church building on the Festival grounds.

Folklife demonstrations like candle dipping, soap making, cow milking, antique farming, sheep shearing, dying, spinning and weaving, are a favorite with all ages. Folklife and folklore seminars are taught by university professors, teachers and local experts of Pennsylvania-Dutch dialect, herbal healing and folk medicine, Pennsylvania-Dutch spirituality, quilts, clothes and utilitarian arts and crafts, and most aspects of the culture.

Children's activities surround the Children's Farmyard Theatre and play area. Old fashion pony rides and Noah's Ark farm animal petting zoo, games, singalongs and hands-on activities delight the kids. Jumping in the haystack, the hay maze and old fashion games introduce many urban and suburban children to an early way of life, previously unknown to them, that continues to this day in the "plain" communities of Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania-Dutch cooks serve homestyle Church suppers, ox roast and chicken dinners, Pennsylvania-Dutch platters and snacking foods like sausage sandwiches, Dutch fries, corn pie, funnel cake, baked goods and more.

The Kutztown Fairgrounds, located in Kutztown, is easily accessible from Route 222 halfway between Reading and Allentown in Southeastern Pennsylvania. Admission: $8 adult; children 12 & under - free; Senior Citizen $7; Family Pass for 4-$24. Toll free 888-674-6136 www.kutztownfestival.com

Drink Milk

The program included an entertaining contest patterned after television's popular Millionaire show. Contestants were selected from the audience. Questions were dairy-related. Contestants could choose to answer questions themselves or request help from a person in the audience. Conducting the contest were last year's Dairy Princess Amanda Martin and alternates Amy Burkhart and Stacy Weidler, who awarded contestants with "got milk" mugs.

Another interesting aspect of competition was the Milk Moustache Contest. For this, people were required to send in a picture of themselves or others wearing milk moustaches. Guests of the event were asked to vote for the photo they liked best. Selected were Marlin, 7, and Louise, 6, children of Tom and Shirley Krall, Lebanon.

Judges for the event were Rebecca Sonnen-Bube, former state dairy princess; Roxanne Kirst, former Pa. Cattlemen's Queen; and Charles Hauck, dairy farmer.

The promotional committee includes Terry Shuey, chairperson; Connie Blauch, co-chairperson; Sheryl Horst, treasurer; Dianne Hoover, secretary; Annette Buck, Sherry Bashore, and Alisha Risser, booking chairpersons, Jennifer Ebersole, pageant chairperson, and Tom Krall, Milkshake Barn coordinator.

Are Dairy Farmers Crazy?

Amanda Gilkinson
Alternate Dairy Princess
Dairy Month Special Columnist

I hope that all of you are enjoying this warmer summer weather, I know that I am. I am also looking forward to the end of school and graduation.

As farmers we all know how important good weather is now for plowing, planting, and of course the hay. I bet that we all can agree that this time of year is a very busy one for farmers. These are the days that start at dawn and go to way past dusk. These are the days that are also very important. We need all of these crops to help in the production of Pennsylvania's official beverage MILK.

Some people may think of farmers as crazy for working so hard for so many hours. I have a poem that I would like to share with all of you. I felt that it fit those of us in the dairy industry.

TO THE CRAZY ONES

Here's to the crazy ones.
The misfits.
The rebels.
The troublemakers.
The round pegs in the square holes.
The ones that see things differently.
They're not fond of rules.
And they have no respect for the status quo.
You can praise them, disagree with them, quote them,
Disbelieve them, glorify or vilify them.
Because they change things.
They invent.
They explore.
They imagine.
They create.
They heal.
They inspire.
They push the human race forward.
Maybe they have to be crazy.
How else can you stare at an empty canvas and see a work of art?
Or sit in silence and hear a song that has never been written?
Or gaze at a red planet and see a laboratory on wheels?
We make tools for these kinds of people.
While some see them as crazy ones, we see genius.
Because the people who are crazy enough to think they can change the world, are the ones who do.

I thank each of you as farmers and people in the dairy industry for being crazy each day. If you were not crazy you would not have given me the opportunities that you have to promote the dairy industry, or to meet and work with so many truly wonderful people that will never be forgotten.

The experiences that I have had since September will be memories that will last forever, from Erie to Philadelphia I have gotten to cover most of the state and there has not been an event that I will ever forget. From passing out ribbons at Farm show to the Book-In-Cook in Philadelphia.

I will be attending the Strawberry Fest in a couple of weeks. I will also be looking forward to baseball games and of course both the Dairy Maid and Dairy Princesses seminars. Every event that I attend is unique in it's own way.

It is hard to believe that in less than a month I will be passing on my county crown. I have had a wonderful time serving Erie county, and most of all promoting Pennsylvania's best the dairy industry.

Though my county reign is almost over, I will continue to be busy through the summer traveling around the state. Any time that you see Lori, Becky or myself, be sure to say "hi." Getting a chance to meet with the people that we represent is what is most meaningful in doing what we do.

Extension Agent Helps Feed The Hunger For Knowledge In Moldova

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

LEWISTOWN (Mifflin Co.) — Take a group of people under communist rule for 80 years, give them freedom and democracy, and what do you get? A group of highly motivated people who are fiercely proud of their country and the progress they've made, but extremely lacking in even the simplest free-enterprise concepts.

That's what Andrew Martin, Penn State Farm Management extension agent based in Mifflin County, found in April when he visited the Republic of Moldova, a former USSR republic that gained independence in 1991. Andrew visited Moldova as an agribusiness volunteer for the Citizens Network for Foreign Affairs. The program, funded by the U.S. Agency for International Development, strives to "improve the lives of small-scale and private farmers and agribusiness entrepreneurs in the former Soviet Union and southern Africa."

Moldova compares in size to Maryland, borders Romania on one side and the Ukraine on the other three, and contains some of the richest soils in the world — chernozem or black soil. The climate resembles the climate in Illinois, and its people look to the United States for knowledge and leadership.

"When the communists left, everyone became a farmer," Andrew explains. "The United States helped privatize the land, to come up with the deed process and criteria for dividing the collective farms into five-acre increments. The United States recommended nondisputable survey points produced by GPS or Global Positioning System."

The country now consists of families trying to survive on five acres each while dealing with a corrupt and bankrupt government. "This is the first generation after communism. They've never had to market products. Under communism, they were followers — you produced your product, grapes, in this case. Now they're required to grow, bottle, label, and sell, and they've never had an example of how to do that. I can teach marketing, and they can repeat it back to me because the communist schooling required obedience and discipline, but they can't apply it. They're very inefficient too. In fact, a word for efficiency doesn't exist in their Romanian-based language."

Families throughout communities in Moldova share resources, such as tractors. With little available money, car parts are often retrofitted for use as garden tools, such as hoes. Farm Management specialist Andrew Martin, center, taught Moldovians marketing concepts for the ag products they produce.

Andrew introduced some marketing concepts to the class that he taught at the Moldova Agricultural College. He spent the previous week in Chistnau developing a lesson plan. "The World Bank lent money to the country to set up local banks. The banks started small, with only $5,000 to lend to local farmers for seed and short-term labor during harvesting. The bank's board members are local people. I taught a one-week class in a small village of Mereseni to board members on how to approve a loan, what a banker should look for, when and if a member can borrow, and how to figure cash flow. The loans average $150 with four months to pay. The average family's net worth in Moldova is $5,000, including the house, land, cow, and chicken."

Each family takes its turn shepherding the cows on common land along highways and around ponds. The cows are fed corn stalks in winter.

Andrew applied to become a volunteer for many reasons. "There's a moral obligation to help. It's in America's best interest to help for trading and world stability, and they are intelligent people — a mind is a terrible thing to waste. It was a perfect match — my skills with what the program personnel were looking for. I was drawn to the farmer-to-farmer approach. I've been on two mission trips prior to working for extension. I've always felt a need to help countries economically. It's hard for a person to listen to anything else when they're hungry."

Andrew found the people in Moldova hungry for more than just food. "The people were friendly, hospitable, lean, but healthy because they walk everywhere. Our meals consisted of cucumbers, spiced sausage, olives and sardines. If the family had money, homemade cow cheese, bread made on Saturday for the whole week, and pitchers of wine because the water isn't drinkable. They have no consistently available source of heat and no fertilizer for their crops. They take turns grazing their cows on common ground near a pond or along the road. They feed their cows straw. When they harvest the corn, the kernels feed the chickens, the corn stock becomes fuel for heat, and the corn leaves become handy in the outhouse.

"Most of the people don't want to live like Americans. They see us as very wasteful. They simple want the basics — enough money to put gas in a car for a day trip once a month or to buy a gift when someone gets married, but they can't. The trip has given Andrew new perspective. He said, "I feel blessed to pay taxes now. We get something for our money — roads, schools. They don't. They pay taxes and get nothing."

Moldova continues to face the challenge of growing economically and finding good leadership for its country. When in Mereseni, the mayor told Andrew, "If the majority of people are farmers, and if they can't manage individual farms, how can they manage their country?"

"Emerging economies start with agriculture," Andrew concludes. "That's why I went to Moldova."

Crowl Looks Forward To York Dairy Princess Reign

Joyce Bupp
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — "Drinking milk will help keep you from getting all bent out of shape," said Heather Crowl, York County's newly-crowned dairy princess.

The 18-year-old Airville young woman will wear the sparkling tiara as York County's 2000-2001 milk promoter, following the annual county dairy industry pageant held May 27 at the York 4-H Center. Named to serve with her on the dairy promotion court are dairy ambassadors Heather Baumgardner and Janet Yohe, dairy maid Amanda Hoover, dairy misses Jolee Anstine and Amy Baumgardner, and little dairy misses Katie Baumgardner and Amber Thoman.

Heather is the daughter of Joyce and Ellis Crowl and a graduating senior at Red Lion Area High School, where she is active in the FFA program. A veteran cattle exhibitor with her own string of 20 head, most of them registered Milking Shorthorns, Heather is a member of the Milk and Money 4-H Club and participates in numerous regional show events. One of her lifetime goals is to have her own small farm where she can raise her favorite red and white cattle.

Heather's presentation on milk and osteoporosis as part of the pageant program competition reflected Heather's interest in the medical industry. She plans to attend Yorktowne Business Institute to study for a career as a medical assistant.

"Take care of your bones, and they will take care of you," Heather admonished the pageant audience, noting that most adults still do not consume adequate amounts of calcium to prevent the crippling and painful symptoms of osteoporosis, or brittle bone disease. Citing current medical statistics, the new princess warned that an estimated 90 percent of women and 60 percent of men are consuming inadequate amount of calcium in their diets, and that "drinking milk is an investment in your bone bank."

Heather followed up her speech segment of the program with a skit demonstrating the brittleness of bones exposed to carbonated soft drinks, in comparison to the strength and flexibility of those similarly exposed to milk.

Dairy ambassador Heather Baumgardner is looking forward to the chance to promote milk's nutritional benefits and a greater awareness of the dairy industry to her own peer age group. Heather is 16 and the daughter of Daniel and Lori Baumgardner, Dillsburg.

Heather's speech presentation related that the author of "Murphy's Law" (anything that can go wrong, will, and at the most inappropriate time) must have been a dairy farmer. She related that everyone — especially dairy farmers, need to have faith, smile and dwell on pleasant things and their many blessings.

Active with the family's church puppet ministry, Heather presented a puppet show, using an original song about milk which she taped for the pageant competition.

Janet Yohe, dairy ambassador, plans to continue her several years of past work as part of the country's dairy promotion team to further her communication skills. Sixteen-year-old Janet is the daughter of Jerry and Kathy Yohe, York, and a junior at Spring Grove Area High School.

In her speech presentation pondering why people cease drinking milk, Janet outlined the numerous kinds of milk and dairy products available for varied diets and personal tastes. Echoing a renewed emphasis by national health/nutritional guidelines on the importance of exercise, Janet suggested that "exercise and milk should be part of everyone's day."

Dressing up like a bride being wedded to a "stuffed" mannikin groom, Janet added a humorous touch to the usual marriage vows with assorted farm-related promises: not to complain about mud tracked across floors, not to complain when he was late from farm work and have dinner waiting, warm and still moist, understanding that eartags are more important in the farm financial picture than earrings — and, of course, to always use real dairy products.

Dairy maid Amanda Hoover has also worked with the county's promotion team for the last few years and related to emcee 4-H/extension specialist Linda Spahr how she really likes to talk with the general public about the benefits of drinking milk. Amanda, 12, is the daughter of Paul and Rose Hoover, East Prospect, where the family tends a herd of 30 dairy goats.

Reinforcing the speech by Heather Crowl, Amanda's poster presentation focused on milk and osteoporosis, visually displaying statistics that one of every two women, and one of every three men, will develop osteoporosis as they age.

Miss and little miss candidates for the York dairy promotion team are each required to present a short, original poem about the industry. Dairy miss Jelee Anstine, 8, aptly recited a rhyme about how milk "makes you smart." Jelee is the daughter of Charles and Lynn Anstine, York, and a second-year dairy miss.

Dairy miss Amy Baumgardner, 9, added a new twist to the old favorite Dr. Seuss "Green Eggs and Ham" poem, presenting a similar cadence of rhyming words about her favorite heifer calf, Sam.

Little dairy misses are Amber Thoman, 6, daughter of Gail and Gary Thoman, Dallastown, and Kathryn "Katie" Baumgardner, 5, sister to Heather and Amy.

"I hope I made a difference," reflected outgoing princess Rebecca Kilgore, whose dairy princess role will continue through September, fulfilling promotion opportunities as a state alternate winner. Becky especially thanked her dad, Doug, for funding all the gas she used for her travels, her mom, Pam, for her enthusiastic promotion ideas and her seven-year-old brother, Christopher, for his affectionate hugs each time she left their home to attend an event.

Outgoing alternate county princess Michelle Walker noted the influence which dairy promotion has played in her life, adding that "my kids are going to drink milk." Michelle's activities with milk promotion assisted her in developing leadership skills which contributed to her selection as a student at this summer's upcoming Governor's School.

York County's dairy princess and promotion team are enthusiastic and anxious about getting out to meet the general public and spread their message about the benefits of milk and dairy foods. To schedule speeches and/or appearances by the dairy princess and her promotion team, contact booking chairman Lori Baumgardner at (717) 432-3169 or coordinator Gail Thoman at (727) 428-1832.

York Dairy Princess Heather Crowl is supported in her dairy promotion activities by her parents, Joyce and Ellis Crowl.

TIP THE SCALES WITH HEAVYWEIGHT MIXERS THAT ARE SOFT ON FEED

Pound for pound, you won't find a more powerful or gentle mixer than the Series IV by Roto-Mix®. Its extra heft easily blends batch after batch of feed while its patented rotor design and tumbling action mix all ingredients without damage. Plus, a special hay pan keeps chunks of hay out of the chamber until they're cut by the auger knives. Transmission, PTO and drive line loads are reduced so the Series IV needs less horsepower and maintenance.

The Series IV is available in trailer, truck and stationary units with mixing capacities from 80 to 520 cu. ft.

TOY TRAIN AUCTION(S)

SATURDAY, JUNE 17, 2000 • 10 AM

Ridge Fire Company

Along Rt. 23, between Phoenixville, PA and Rt. 100

Known by thousands as the Hobby Shop with everything and anything. Northeast Hobby served the public from this location for over 50 years. Unsold stock was never closed out. Rather, it was relegated to the cavernous basement to await an uncertain future. After 20 or 30 years, there was no way to determine what had been stacked away down there during the Fifties and Sixties, because stuff from the seventies and Eighties obscured it. All will now be revealed! After working (mining) there for six straight days and hauling away a minimum of three tons each day, my loyal staff and I have tossed away our dust masks to greet the sun once more and announce a calendar for the liquidation of this buried treasure.

10 A.M. SATURDAY, JUNE 17 IN THE BLUE ROOM – Selling American Flyer HO & S Gauge trains and accessories new in the box, Lionel HO & O Gauge trains, large quantity of HO trains & kits from various makers - some new, some used. Another Train Auction will be held concurrently in the pavilion.

10 A.M. SATURDAY, JUNE 24 IN THE PAVILION – We will sell a huge truck load of "stuff." This is the process we hope to employ - everything will be hauled to Ridge for sorting, since the 5,000 square feet in our facility is not adequate. We will remove most of the trains for June 17, most of the early auto kits, promos & die cast cars for an auction at Ridge on July 22. (There will be auto kits sold on June 24 also, since there are too many for July 22.) Then we will take away the early and exotic airplane kits and motors for an auction in September. That will leave about ten tons of material of all kinds for the June 24 sale. Ship kits, car kits, plane kits, toys, games, displays, samples, racks, paint, supplies, materials all to be sold in quantity with large lots for dealers and flea marketers.

A 10% Buyer's Premium Will Be Applied

Poultry Waste Management Handbook Available

ITHACA, N.Y. — Waste management has been a concern in poultry operations for many years. Problems with storing, handling, managing, and utilizing the by-products of production have come to the forefront in planning, establishing, and operating poultry farms.

Poultry growers have become sensitive to potential nuisance litigation should their farms generate odors, problems with insects and vermin, leachate, or runoff that offends neighbors or poses a risk to the environment.

A new book published by the Natural Resource, Agriculture, and Engineering Service (NRAES) was written to aid growers and their advisors in designing and implementing effective waste management plans for poultry operations. The "Poultry Waste Management Handbook" ($16 plus shipping and handling with sales tax, 72 pages, Sept. 1999) covers all aspects of solid, semisolid, and liquid poultry waste management, from manure production to utilization. The publication is a valuable resource for producers, cooperative extension educators, manure management consultants, regulatory agencies, and soil and water conservation district staff.

The "Poultry Waste Management Handbook" contains nine chapters that cover the following topics: manure production and characteristics, environmental regulations and hazards, poultry housing and waste management, manure storage within and outside of the poultry house (including solids systems and liquid, slurry, and semisolid systems), waste treatment and utilization (such as composting, anaerobic lagoons, aerobic digestion, and direct incineration), nutrient management, application equipment (from solids handling equipment to irrigation systems), dead bird management (rendering, composting, and incineration), and alternative uses for manure.

The nutrient management chapter explains the steps involved in developing a nutrient management plan and contains worksheets for estimating nitrogen availability and application rates. The chapter on application reviews equations and procedures for calibrating various types of equipment. Forty-three illustrations and 14 tables supplement the text.

The "Poultry Waste Management Handbook" was written by Eldridge R. Collins, Jr. professor and extension agricultural engineer, Department of Biological Systems Engineering, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University; James C. Barker, professor and extension specialist, Department of Biological and Agricultural Engineering, North Carolina State University; Lewis E. Carr, Ph.D., instructor agricultural engineering, Department of Biological Resources Engineering, University of Maryland at College Park; Herbert L. Brodie, professor emeritus, Department of Biological Resources Engineering, University of Maryland at College Park; and John H. Martin, Jr., former associate professor, Department of Animal and Food Sciences, University of Delaware.

The "Poultry Waste Management Handbook," NRAES-132, is available for $16 per copy plus shipping and handling from NRAES, Cooperative Extension, 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Ithaca, NY 14853-5701. Shipping and handling for one copy is $3.75 within the continental U.S. New York state residents add eight percent sales tax (calculated on both the cost of publications and the shipping and handling charges).

For more information or a free publication catalog, contact NRAES by phone at (607) 255-7654, by fax at (607) 254-8770, or by e-mail at nraes@cornell.edu. To learn more about NRAES, browse through the entire catalog, and order books on-line. The Website is www.nraes.org.

Want Good Alfalfa? Watch The Soil pH

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co ) — When it comes to his alfalfa, crop farmer Joe Weimer of Somerset said nothing is more critical than main taining a pH balance of 6 5 to 7

'The main thing is to keep an eye on the pH," Weimer said

Weimer usually sends a test to Penn State or to the University of Virginia On old plantings, he runs a soil sample about every third or fourth year However, with new seedings, it is critical to run a soil sample right away In two or three weeks the results will come back

If the indicators show the soil pH is low lime it

'Usually good alfalfa would take 1 000 pounds to a ton a year,

Weimer said "I have a lime spreader, so I spread it myself '

Weimer prefers using hydrated lime because it goes to work the same season, which is pretty fast Weimer said the lime application will last 4 to 5 years

"I like to get six to seven years out of seed," Weimer said "When the alfafa comes out, I go into two years of corn before I go back into al falfa."

The rotation works out well and allows some 12 to 20 acres of new al falfa seedings to go in every year

The fundamental thing about al falfa is to avoid wet spots, cautioned Weimer Right now his own acre age has one vulnerable area where a wet spot is troublesome

You won't often see a scene such as this Joe Weimer holds a plant showing deep root growth—the alfalfa was finally able to locate some moisture during the 1999 drought. By coincidence, a cave-in found near a county road revealed a natural underground water course next to Joe Weimer's alfalfa crop Photo by Gay Brownlee

Producers Use CLA, Mini-Dairies To Move Milk

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co ) — Milk is the original "neutraceutical" or nutrient-pharmaceutical that can protect the human body, science has proven

Simply put, milk harbors con jugated linoleic acid (CLA), a fatty acid present in milk that can fight certain types of cancer Milk con tains about 4-6 milligrams of CLA per gram of fat (cheese, too)

And pasture scientists are showing that cows fed high amounts of forages, including those from pas ture, can increase CLA in milk by 2 3 percent, noted Larry Muller, Penn State dairy scientist, at last month's Pennsylvania Grazing and Forage Conference at the Holiday Inn in Grantville

Muller spoke on a session focusing on value added dairy mar kets

These days, dairy farmers are struggling with volatile prices, in creased input costs, decreasing mar gins, and they receive a smaller percentage of the retail price Bever age consumption, particularly soft drinks, is on the rise

More than ever, farmers must consider the end users of the prod ucts And those end users — con sumers — are looking for the "pharma" foods that can add to a healthy lifestyle

CLAs are found in unsaturated fat Already dairy science (through a Penn State pilot project) has found that through management of nu trients to the cow, the proportion of the saturated, or bad fat, can be de creased, and unsaturated fat in creased

In the future CLA amounts could potentially be more carefully controlled The same CLAs have

Harrisburg

I have recently been involved with helping to conduct several grazing schools in the Harrisburg area As I was conducting some classroom dis cussions on several agronomic topics it became evident to me that even though several of the subjects were designed for beginning grazers, they were points that many experi enced graziers may need to revisit I will address several of those topics in this column

When dealing with agronomic principles of grazing, we need to think about the basic unit of produc tion – the tiller or individual plant When we have a population of tillers they are called a sward It is the number and size of tillers in a sward that makes up the total yield of dry matter, either as hay, silage, or pasture We need to make sure that we care for these fillers by pro viding a proper growing environ ment with all the essential nutrients such as nitrogen, phosphorous, and potassium, in a soil with the opti mum pH level We also need to pro vide the tiller with proper management and that basically in

PLADOT MINI DAIRY
Lets You Package Your Own Milk, Butter

A new mini-dairy from Israel makes it possible for small and mid-sized dairy producers to process and package their own milk, butter, cheese, ice cream and yogurt.

Pladot Mini Dairy is being introduced in the United States and has been approved by the USDA and meets all standards of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

"Pladot has well over 250 mini-dairy systems in some 26 countries around the world including several in Pennsylvania," says Bob Turner, the company's U.S. Sales Manager. "This system offers a lot of opportunity for profit and added value to an existing dairy producer."

Economically feasible for 40-cow herds and up, the mini-dairy includes a HTST Pasteurizer, cream separator, butter churn, cooling and holding tanks (110 gallons and up) and a cup filling and sealing machine.

The equipment is small enough to fit in an 800 to 3000 square foot room, depending on processing capacity and end products being processed. The smallest set-up processes about 2,000 lbs. of milk per day up to 20,000 lbs. of milk per day. Package costs range from $85,000 to $300,000, with payback expected in two to three years for most farmers, who can receive up to $10 more per hundredweight for their milk.

Price of the system includes processing plant design and installation, training at Pladot's Israel plant, and additional on-site training at your own plant at installation time by Pladot's food technologist. Local marketing assistance is provided by Fisher & Thompson and Pladot.

BEEF TIPS

How to choose a bull for herd sire (Part Two)

Question: Why pay $1000 to $3000 for a purebred herd sire (1/1/2 or 2 1/2 years old, typically) when sometimes bulls can be bought for less?

Answer: Purebred sires increase predictability in progeny. Crossbred or unregistered sires often bring unexpected and unwanted characteristics to your herd.

The herd sire is an investment in your herd—the single most important investment you can make. Remember: each calf will reflect the attributes of its sire.
